Nixon Signs Resolution Approving SALT Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hailing it as a step reducing the danger of war, President Nixon Saturday signed a congressional resolution approving his agreement with Soviet leaders limiting the two superpowers' offensive nuclear arsenals for five years.

"This is not an agreement which guarantees there will be no war," the chief executive said. "... This is a beginning of a process that is enormously important that will limit now and, we hope later, reduce the burden of arms, and thereby reduce the danger of war."

Sitting beneath a crystal chandelier in the White House Treaty Room, Nixon affixed his signature to the document as 11 congressional leaders and six administration officials looked over his shoulders.

He had reached the interim agreement in Moscow summit talks four months ago and, along with a treaty limiting deployment of defensive missiles, sent it to Capitol Hill for approval. There the Senate, after protracted debate, added an amendment stipulating that there should be equality in the number of weapons in any future treaty governing the two countries' offensive arsenals.

The agreement gives the Soviet Union a numerical advantage in land-based and submarine-launched missiles—a fact that prompted Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., to press for the amendment. It urges Nixon to seek a treaty that "would not limit the United States to levels of intercontinental strategic forces inferior to the limits provided for the Soviet Union."

Negotiations on a permanent treaty—the so-called SALT 2 talks—are scheduled to begin this fall in Geneva. Nixon said nothing about the new round of talks in his signing ceremony comments, but he has cautioned repeatedly in the past that "these negotiations are not going to be easy."

The Kremlin announced Friday that Soviet leaders had ratified the second major product of the Moscow summit—the treaty limiting antiballistic, or defensive, missiles. The Senate approved the defensive weapons treaty in August, but Nixon had withheld action required to complete the ratification process pending approval of the offensive-weapons agreement.

A White House spokesman said the President would act soon to complete the defensive-weapons treaty ratification but gave no further details.

On Voter Registration

Televised Debate Possible

A possible televised debate between an advocate and an opponent of county-wide voter registration may be in the offing in October, The Democrat-Capital has learned.

Mrs. John Ellison, president of the Pettis County League of Women Voters, which has been the guiding force in getting the measure before the voters in November, said "Yes, I would be willing — very willing — to debate if something could be worked out," when approached by The Democrat-Capital regarding the possibility.

Zeb Thomas, Western District County Court Judge, who has expressed disapproval of the proposal was unavailable for comment.

The League Friday presented Thomas, Eastern Judge E. L. "Red" Birdsong and Presiding Judge B. A. "Bunny" Fischer with 2,234 signatures, more than enough to put the measure before the voters in November, assuming the signatures are ruled valid by County Clerk Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson.

The League effort, which began in May, has "been a lot of work," according to Mrs. Betty Healey, chairman of the project, indicated she has lost track of the hundreds of phone calls made, visits conducted and miles covered in the League's effort to carry its message to the thousands of unregistered county voters.

Mrs. Ellison, in describing the forthcoming organized effort to favorably present the issue to the voters, said the League "definitely" plans to use the news media in its campaign. "We'll try to reach as many as we can that way," Mrs. Ellison said. "We feel it can be effective."

However, she added, the personal touch won't be forgotten.

"We still plan to use word of mouth a lot...and informing the voters personally," she said.

Mrs. Jerome Block, who has also been active in the campaign, thinks the upcoming effort won't be as hard to begin as the petition drive last May.

"A lot of groundwork has been laid," Mrs. Block said. "We'll just have to work hard this time around also."

According to another League member, Mrs. Robert Edmonds, a chief problem that faced many League volunteers throughout the entire petition drive was public misunderstanding of the League itself.

"They couldn't believe that we weren't partisan," Mrs. Edmonds said. "When we explained that the League is not affiliated with any political party and rather serves as an objective investigative, study and action group we usually surprised many people."

Attesting to the non-partisan nature of the League effort is the fact that representatives of both Democratic and Republican parties and the Sedalia Jaycees have aided in the petition drive.

In summing up the forthcoming promotional activities to be undertaken by the League, Mrs. Edmonds said "There are so many chances for voting violations now. People usually don't mean to, but mistakes are always more possible when all county voters are not registered than when they are. We hope to be able to convey that to the voters of Pettis County."

Protestants March In Violence Protest

BELFAST (AP) — A civilian was killed in a bomb explosion and a soldier shot dead by a sniper Saturday. Thousands of Protestants marched through downtown Belfast to protest violence in Northern Ireland.

The bomb, estimated by the army at about 100 pounds, had been planted in a parked car outside a tavern and went off without warning. Besides the civilian killed, 10 other persons were injured and a wide area of Belfast's shopping district was damaged.

Earlier, a British soldier was shot dead by a sniper in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne District, and a stretcher bearer helping to remove the body was wounded.

The violence raised the three-year death toll in Northern Ireland's sectarian fighting to 587.

Under a strong British army security cloak, more than 100,000 Protestants, led by 50 bands, marched four miles in bright sunshine from their Shankill Road heartland to Northern Ireland's government seat at Stormont Castle.

March organizers — including the right-wing Vanguard Movement and the Loyalist Association of Workers — claimed it was the biggest Protestant show of strength in the 50-year history of the province.

The rally made it clear it wanted tougher action against guerrillas in the province and control of its affairs — ended when Britain imposed direct rule six months ago — restored.

It followed a day of bomb and bullet bloodshed Friday which left four dead — including a girl the army claimed was a guerrilla sniper — and at least 25 wounded in Belfast and other towns.

Angry Catholics claimed Saturday that 19-year-old Patricia McKay, shot by the army during the Falls Road gunplay was unarmed. Troopers said she had been about to fire a pistol at them. Mrs. McKay's father said she was not the kind of girl to carry a gun.

Killed in the same engagement was an 18-year-old youth the army said was preparing to fire at a soldier.

The Friday death toll was completed by a 23-year-old university student found murdered in Belfast — the apparent victim of a sectarian assassination squad.

Concert in Church

The Concert Chorale of the Southwest Missouri State University conducted by Samuel Gordon performed in the Sacred Heart Church Friday evening. The vocal presentation included Handel's Sonata in B Major and The Deum by Mozart among other selections primarily of a religious nature.

Tanaka Returns To Tokyo

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, his mission to re-establish diplomatic ties with Communist China a rousing success, returned home Saturday with hopes for a more peaceful, stable Asia.

But as he spoke, police planned special precautions against possible clashes by supporters of mainland China and the Nationalist government on Taiwan in the light of Peking's 23rd anniversary day Sunday.

Tanaka, who flew in from Shanghai, was greeted by crowds of flag-waving supporters.

He told newsmen the new Japan-China accord should help bring peace and stability in Asia and said the absence of friendly relations between the two was the biggest source of instability in this part of the world.

Under the principles of peaceful coexistence to which Japan and China agreed, he added, the rapprochement will not pose any threat to third nations. He said Japan will send a special envoy to Southeast Asian countries to explain the accord. China also will send officials to neighboring friendly countries, he added.

Tanaka told his news conference here Saturday that many problems still remained to be worked out by Japan and China. He indicated it might take some time to conclude the treaty of peace and friendship which he and Premier Chou En-lai declared the two countries would negotiate.

"There is no time limit," he added.

After Japan and China announced they would establish diplomatic relations, Japan informed Taiwan it could no longer maintain such relations with the Nationalists.

Also waiting to be worked out were the mechanics for ending Japan's diplomatic relations with the Nationalist Chinese.

Col. Tim McCoy Cracks His Whip

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The amazing Col. Tim McCoy, 81-years-young, commanded the attention of his audience Friday night at Smith-Cotton High School's auditorium, performing whip tricks such as opening a bottle of soda pop, lighting a match, putting the match out, cutting a cigarette in half and firing a six shooter.

Indian sign talker, cowboy, cavalryman, whip expert and movie star, the former adjutant general of Wyoming first learned how to handle Australian ropes in that country while on tour. Why Australian whips? "They're the only whips made," McCoy declared.

McCoy tossed the long thin kangaroo-hide whip, making it respond in an ear shattering pop during a backstage interview with The Democrat-Capital and cast some interesting reflections on his career, Indian history and Gen George Armstrong Custer.

McCoy traced Custer's route to the Battle of the Little Big Horn in the early 1900's with the aid of Custer scouts, interpreters and Indians who had been part of the last great Indian victory. He once said: "if Custer had survived the Battle of the Little Big Horn on June 25, 1876, he'd have been courtmartialed for his military mistakes at that action," and McCoy's opinion was unchanged.

"He was a vain man," McCoy said of Custer. "He always had to be in the limelight," added the veteran cavalryman. Custer had risen swiftly through the upper ranks of the military, as did many civil war officers, according to McCoy, by battlefield promotion. After Appomatix, though, Custer was demoted, again like many civil war officers. McCoy surmised the buckskin Indian fighter, "thought he had to re-establish the position he lost after the civil war."

McCoy said Custer's vanity is the reason he was sent to "Fiddler's Green" (where soldiers go when they die) during the Battle of the Little Big Horn. He utilized forced marches to get to the Little Big Horn 24-hours ahead of other Seventh Cavalry troops and arrived at the battle site with men too tired for combat. Custer was also greatly out-numbered, McCoy said, because he divided his forces "in the face of a superior enemy." Custer "scrambled" his troops, according to McCoy, taking only those he personally favored, the Custer clique, to a bloody death by his side. Officers Custer disliked or whose military skill he envied were sent away from the fight altogether.

Noted western journalist Mark Kellogg was covering the Custer campaign and went with the vain colonel on what proved to be his last assignment.

Asked if Chief Crazy Horse was viewed as a messiah, as purported by some Indian authorities, McCoy's reply was in the negative. "He was no messiah, Wovoka... was the only Indian I knew that was thought of as a messiah. Crazy Horse was a damn fine warrior and chief," McCoy said.

Col. Tim McCoy

He told The Democrat-Capital there was no reason for Crazy Horse's death, "no reason for his arrest." Crazy Horse was arrested, according to the then official view for trying to lead an uprising. McCoy explained, and recent Indian historians agree, Crazy Horse was killed because his Indian leadership was feared by the military. "He (Crazy Horse) had no idea of starting anything," McCoy said. However, the Indian chief was arrested for leaving his reservation when he went to visit a sick relative. McCoy declared Crazy Horse was lead to Fort Robinson to talk with the fort's commander. However, according to McCoy, the chief was ushered to a jail cell and when he refused to enter was stabbed to death with a bayonet.

Taught to shoot from a horse with one of Buffalo Bill Cody's rifles, McCoy said he had no plans for retirement. "Next season I'll be 82 and I'll still be out there," he said.

Commenting on his active old age McCoy said, "someone once said pick out a damn good pair of grandparents." In a more

Report Coal Dump Source of Fish Kill

(Democrat-Capital Service)

CALHOUN — Conservation officials have discovered the source of acid pollution which was responsible for killing 26,000 fish last weekend along an eight mile stretch of Sand Creek near here.

According to Larry Belusz, State Department of Conservation Biologist, an abandoned coal dump at the Tebo mine operated by the Peabody Coal Co., was the source of the pollution.

Belusz said that Dr. James Whitely, Columbia, of the Conservation Department's water quality branch, discovered the source by spotting acetic water in the pit from a small plane. Belusz said Whitely also walked the side of the creek for a closer inspection.

The kill on Sand Creek was only part of the environmental damage caused by heavy rains pounding the eroded area recently. Another 20,000 fish were killed along four miles of Tebo Creek, Belusz said, with the acid pollution emanating from private property formerly owned by the Windsor Coal Co. which is now defunct.

The conservationist explained that this ownership situation made reclamation operations difficult since most of the new owners are not financially able to renew the land.

However, he said, since the pollution source on Sand Creek is an operative mine, prosecution, if necessary, becomes much easier.

"I'm not saying we're going to prosecute," Belusz said. "It all depends on how things develop as far as the firm cooperating with us on this thing is concerned."

Belusz said Saturday that bulldozers from Peabody were in the process of creating several dams to prevent rainwater interacting with fine coal fragments from entering the creek.

"We'll be watching the area and will check the first part of the week to see how things are going. Most of the water is so muddy now because of recent rains that it's hard to tell if the problem is still evident," Belusz said.

North's Offensive Ends Sixth Month

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese offensive marked the end of its sixth month Saturday with a general battlefield lull, but officers here don't believe Hanoi has halted its test of South Vietnam's ability to survive militarily.

With the monsoons expected to move in over the northern half of South Vietnam during October, Saigon's troops are poised to defend their coastal cities with diminishing American air support. Some sources believe the enemy will stage a series of spectacular — if not strategically significant — attacks in the Saigon region before the presidential election in the United States.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced that American warplanes raided North Vietnamese military airfields northwest of Hanoi and destroyed or damaged nine MIG interceptors on the ground. The coordinated strikes Friday by U.S. F4 Phantoms were among the heaviest against North Vietnam's air force since the United States resumed full-scale bombing of the North in response to Hanoi's offensive in the South.

Radio Hanoi claimed that antiaircraft gunners in Yen Bai Province, northwest of Hanoi, shot down a U.S. F111A swing-wing jet on Thursday—the day the aircraft returned to combat duty in Indochina.

The last six months of the over-all war have been an exercise in superlatives.

The United States massed its greatest naval task force since World War II to support the South Vietnamese with planes and guns. It fielded more B52 heavy bombers than it ever had in combat and rebuilt its landbased air power.

The North Vietnamese launched their biggest coordinated attacks of the war, committing more divisions, more tanks, more artillery and more sophisticated weaponry than they ever had before.

The cost of the longest and biggest military operation of an already-long war have been tremendous.

Two of South Vietnam's 44 provincial capitals have been destroyed and another heavily damaged. Several district capitals have been smashed. The offensive has generated more than a million refugees in the South and uncounted civilian casualties.

Q. I was at the scene of the double-fatality accident on West Highway 50 Sunday evening, and after watching the injured being cared for and transported, I would like to know what kind of medical training ambulance owners and attendants are required to take. One man with a broken leg was handled properly by the ambulance driver, with help from several bystanders. A girl who had been thrown onto the highway was also carefully handled by the ambulance driver and those present. But another girl inside the car which collided with the bus was not treated properly. My experience in emergency medical treatment is limited, with only a Civil Defense Medical Self-Help program to my credit, but it was obvious that the one-man carry used to carry the victim to the ambulance was wrong.

In cases where internal injuries are probable, (and this surely was one), anyone who has had any kind of emergency first aid treatment knows it is vital to keep the body straight to avoid further damage to internal organs or the spinal cord. A four-man carry would have been the proper method to transport the victim to the ambulance. In addition, this victim (who hospital personnel later told me had a possible broken neck and was dead on arrival at the hospital) was placed on her side in the front seat of the ambulance, and all three of the injured were taken away in one ambulance. The man who had suffered the broken leg was placed on a stretcher in a semi-conscious state and it seemed common sense would dictate placing him in the front seat and putting the more seriously injured girl on a stretcher. A second ambulance arrived, anyway, just as the first one with the three victims left the scene for the hospital. H. W.E.

A. Although there are no state regulations requiring ambulance operators and drivers to have first aid knowledge, Medicare regulations require at least one of the two ambulance personnel necessary for all calls to have taken and passed beginning and advanced first aid courses in order to be able to transport Medicare patients. Also, city ambulance personnel must be approved by Police Chief William Miller.

According to Rex Hutchings, operator of the Community Ambulance Service, the Missouri State Ambulance Association of which he is a member, has been trying to get legislation passed in this area for several years, but without success.

A check by Hot Line revealed that Hutchings, Joe Wasson (owner of Pettis County Ambulance, Inc.) and F. H. Rush (owner of Sedalia Ambulance Service) all require their employes to have first aid training.

Q. I would like to know how the mayor and council of Sedalia will pick their new city fire chief and the assistant fire chief. — Mrs. M. G. D.

A. According to Mayor Jerry Jones, the positions will be filled "on the basis of grade, length of service, ability and knowledge." The successive grades of position within the ranks of city firemen are fireman, driver, lieutenant, captain, assistant chief and chief. "We wouldn't move a fireman up to assistant chief, for example," Jones said. "We would probably elevate a captain." The final appointment will be a joint decision by the Mayor and the City Council.

Q. Stray and loose dogs are a major problem in our east-central neighborhood (East Ninth and Engineer). In recent weeks I have had to resack garbage because the plastic bags have been ripped open by dogs. Why doesn't the police department enforce the ordinances which require dogs to be tied up or on a leash? And since the ordinances are not enforced, why doesn't the poundmaster pick up these roving dogs? — B. W.

A. Police Chief William Miller said there is no ordinance requiring dogs to be on leash or tied up. He said the ordinance only stipulates that the dogs must be under the owner's control, and when not under his control, the dogs must be on the owner's property.

Miller suggested the next time the dogs cause trouble, the complaining witness should go to the police station and swear out a warrant against the dogs' owners. Miller said the poundmaster will respond to calls of stray dogs but there are times when he is too busy to answer the calls immediately. And many times, the police chief said, when the dogcatcher arrives at the scene, the dogs are gone. And, "he can't sit there all day waiting for the dogs to show," Miller said.

Donations Boost Buena Vista Operation Here

A recent flood of gifts and donations in time, material and effort have brought the Buena Vista Nursing Home, Georgetown Road, very close to the break even point as far as operating expenses are concerned, it was reported this week.

As one board member put it, "We've been running in the hole for several years now, and we're just about breaking even, thanks to the response from the community."

Buena Vista, which is a home for 46 elderly residents, has long been financially troubled due, among other things, to the benevolent fee policy of the institution, which has set a standard fee, but accepts less for those unable to meet that figure.

Early this year, it was pointed out by Mrs. W. C. Askew, vice president of the Pettis County Association for Social Services, Inc. that it might take anywhere between $30,000 and $40,000 in outside aid to run the home properly. The county court, at the same time, expressed doubts that it could provide that much supplemental revenue.

Presently, however, according to the Buena Vista Board, the court is picking up the monthly operating deficit after fees and donations. And enough money is reportedly on hand to consider a remodeling project in one of the men's restrooms at the home.

This pleasant change in the financial outlook at the facility has been made possible by a variety of gifts and donations in material, money and effort, one board member reported.

When both of the much-used washing machines at the home broke down recently, several donations from private individuals provided a substantial payment on new washers. The county court made up the difference.

Other gifts of linens and clothing have been made, the board said, reducing operating expenses that much more. The Altrusa Club donates stationery for letter-writing activities.

Physical aid has come from the county court, which has provided maintenance help through a Veterans Administration program. Two veterans were designated to participate in a fence-painting project at the home.

A St. Paul's Lutheran Church women's group provided help by fixing and renovating chairs in the rambling structure and the Missouri State School, Marshall, has offered to send crews to clean both the inside of the building and the adjacent grounds. The school has promised to provide all the equipment, material and supervisors necessary to complete the chore.

Service organizations in the county have also donated their thought and time to the guests at the home.

The Salvation Army recently held its annual watermelon feast for the home, and the Sedalia Jaycees donated some chicken cooked in their annual barbecue. The Georgetown homakers group regularly bakes cookies for residents of the home and the Our Savior Lutheran Church holds monthly birthday celebrations. The Paradise Donut Shop, State Fair Shopping Center, also provides food for the home.

A special birthday party will be held Oct. 5 by the family of Lucy J. Cox, a guest who will be 95. All guests in the home will be treated at the affair.

As one board member explained, what once was a financially depressing situation at Buena Vista has become an opportunity for guests to feel "at home."

St. Louis Man Picked For Position

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Herald Traveler and Record American says Robert DiGrazia, St. Louis County police superintendent, has been chosen by Mayor Kevin H. White for the $35,000-a-year job of Boston police commissioner.

The newspaper, quoting St. Louis sources, said the 44-year-old DiGrazia will fly to Boston Sunday afternoon to meet with the mayor, who may announce his choice as early as Monday.

The mayor's office denied the job has been offered to anyone, but the newspaper said it was learned White personally arranged to have DiGrazia, his wife and five children flown to Boston Sunday.

In St. Louis, DiGrazia declined comment on the report.

"I would suggest any confirmation should come from the Boston mayor's office," he told a reporter. "I've been led to believe the announcement will come some time next week. The Herald Traveler hasn't talked with me. I have received no official notification either way."

Peace for All Mankind

70,000 people saw the sun dance in the heavens and apparently plunge to earth.

Moments before the crowd has been soaked by rain and spattered with mud. Now suddenly everybody's clothes were clean dry.

The time was just 55 years ago—October, 1917.

The place was Fatima in Portugal.

The wild dancing of the sun was the sign promised to three young children by the lady who had appeared to them for the past 6 months.

The lady was Mary—the mother of God and through these children she offered peace to mankind.

Today the offer is still being made. If you are interested in the way to peace for all mankind, fill out the coupon below asking for "Fatima . . . Mary's Peace Plan from Heaven."

Term Begins Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court begins a new term Monday facing major decisions on school integration and financing and on obscenity and abortion laws.

These sensitive topics are among the 99 cases already selected by the Justices for argument over the next seven months. Along the way, they will add other touchy items, such as, possibly, sex discrimination, legislative apportionment and state aid to religious schools.

Meanwhile, a little more than a month from now, the nation's voters will help shape the future philosophical attitude of the Court as they choose between President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern.

In his first term, the President has placed four conservative Justices on the Court, one short of a majority. Two other nominees rejected by the Senate also were conservatives. Undoubtedly, he will keep on this course if he wins re-election and vacancies develop.

McGovern, on the other hand, could be expected if elected to try to reverse the swing toward conservatism that Nixon has accomplished with the appointment of Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist.

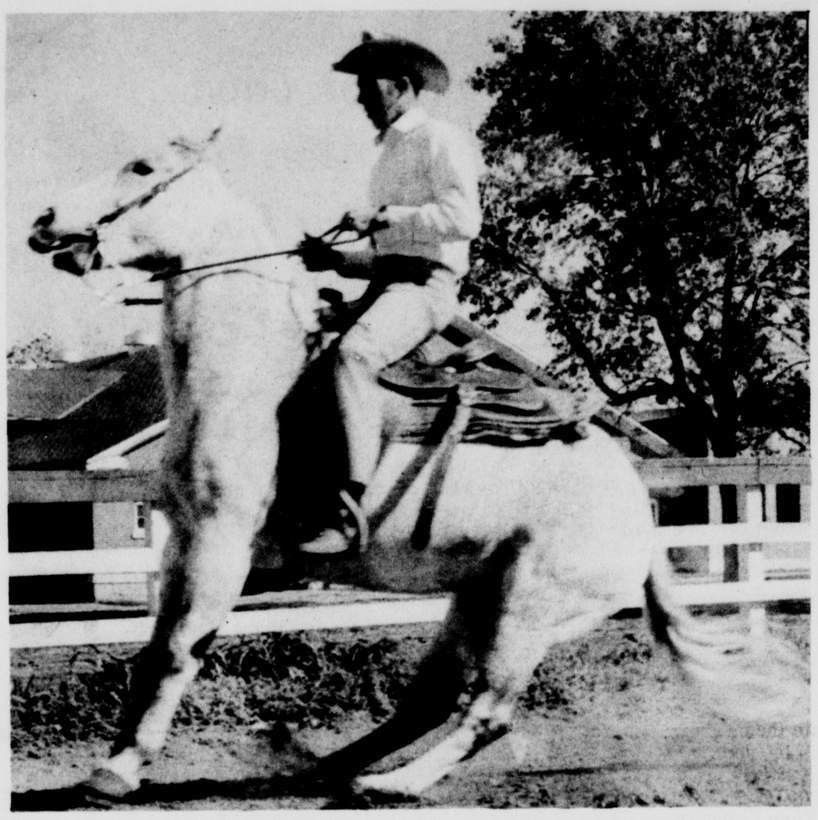
At this point, however, the balance of power at the Court rests largely with the two Justices who are in neither the liberal nor conservative wings consistently: Potter Stewart and Byron R. White.

The first round of rulings—up to 900—will be handed down on Tuesday, Oct. 10. For the most part, these will be denials of petitions to be heard. A number of appeals will be accepted for review. And there will be several summary decisions—judgments without the interim step of a hearing before the Court.

Then the Justices will launch a two-week period of oral argument that includes some of the most prominent cases of the term: Georgia and Texas abortion laws; school desegregation in Denver; school financing in San Antonio, Tex.; the refusal of a television station in Washington, D.C., to air antiwar advertisements.

Since the Court has extended the right of privacy to family, marriage and sex matters, it would not be very surprising if it struck down the abortion laws as unconstitutional interference with the right of physicians to administer medical care or the right of women to control their bodies.

The Denver school case, the first from outside the South to be argued, concerns the concentration of minority-group pupils in schools with higher dropout rates and whether officials have an obligation to counter racial housing patterns in the way they build new schools and design boundaries.



World Champion

Dr. John Mehaffey, Pataskala, Ohio, brings "Hickory Bomber" to a sliding stop in the winning form that brought them the title of Worlds Champion Amateur Reining Horse in competition at the Fairgrounds coliseum Friday. Total purses of $50,000 are offered with two world championship classes and two Land of the Ozarks championships to be held Sunday afternoon at the coliseum. The World Championships are being held in Missouri for the first time, moving here from Columbus, Ohio, their home since 1966.

Reining Horse Competition Held on State Fairgrounds

The National Reining Horse Association World Championships moved to the Missouri State Fairgrounds this weekend. More than 200 horses from 22 states and Canada participated in the events that started Thursday and ended in the world class competition Sunday afternoon.

A total purse of $40,000 was offered in the NRHA championships and two $5,000 Land of the Ozarks Futurities were added to this year's competitions, held in Missouri for the first time. The annual contests have taken place in Columbus, Ohio since 1966, but an added purse of $2,250 brought the championships here.

The classes are Futurity events, limited to horses three years-old and under, shown in reining and pleasure events. Current national point leaders and many contenders attended the show, hoping to add to their victories. Each entry in the NRHA Futurity championships has paid a $200 entry fee in payments since the horse was foaled.

Trophies for the championships include three $1,500 sculpted bronze statutes and two $500 saddles, in addition to the cash prizes.

Representatives of the NRHA came to Sedalia Sept. 20 to check the ring conditions as footing is extremely important to these reining horses which must come to a sliding stop from full speed, turn on a dime and take off in the direction from which they had just come. Five judges are used to score the horse's abilities.

Carl Mills, Cedar Vale, Kan., a national director for the association told The Democrat-Capital he was "happy with the conditions here" and would work to see that the championships are brought here again next year.

Explosion Kills 19 Sailors

SAIGON (AP) — An explosion ripped through a gun turret on the U.S. 7th Fleet's heavy cruiser Newport News early Sunday, killing 19 sailors and injuring 10 the Navy announced.

The world's largest gun cruiser was operating just below the demilitarized zone in an area some 13 miles north-northeast of Quang Tri City, firing against North Vietnamese positions, the Navy said. The explosion occurred at about 1 a.m. Saigon time.

"Extent of the damage is not known but it apparently was restricted to the gun turret," the 7th Fleet said in a brief statement. "Cause of the accident is under investigation." It was the worst accident aboard a 7th Fleet ship since the big American buildup began last March 30 to counter the North Vietnamese offensive.

A Navy spokesman said the explosion was at the number two turret of eight-inch guns, which would be just forward of the bridge. Two of the ship's three eight-inch gun turrets are forward, one is aft of the bridge.

Associated Press correspondent Dennis Neeld reported from Da Nang that the ship has a medical facility aboard and that the injured were still aboard at daybreak. The cruiser was reported still in the same area off Quang Tri, four miles from the mouth of the Cua Viet River.

There was no indication of its next destination.

The 21,000-ton Newport News is based in Norfolk, Va. It was sent to Vietnam earlier this year as part of the naval buildup.

It has operated against enemy targets in both North and South Vietnam, and led two raids on the major port of Haiphong.

The cruiser's main battery consists of three turrets, each with three rapid firing eight-inch guns.

Norris' Condition Listed As 'Good'

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of Sedalia's public schools, continues to recuperate from his second heart attack at Bothwell Hospital, according to hospital sources.

Norris is resting in "good" condition, a hospital spokesman told The Democrat-Capital Saturday evening. He was admitted to the hospital in early September suffering chest pains and was placed in intensive care for several days.

Kill

The biologist expressed concern about future kills in the area because of the extensive mining operations, both past and present, which have left their mark on the land.

The acid will continue to wash into the creek," Belusz said, "but I hope there's enough good water being washed in through tributaries downstream from the pollution to offset the danger."

Last weekend's kill of 46,000 on the two streams was the largest ever reported. In 1971 about 6,000 fish were killed by similar pollution, and 25,000 were claimed in a kill in 1970.

serious vein, McCoy said he kept active. "There are fellows younger than me sitting in rocking chairs saying, 'I'm an old man,' I'm not an old man." A member of the show wagered McCoy would outlive the rest of the performers.

Asked if he worked as an extra before obtaining a starring role, McCoy retorted, "I starred in my very first picture." His movie career began when he filled a movie company's request for 500 live Indians for the western classic "Covered Wagon."

McCoy's love affair with the West began in his boyhood when he moved to Wyoming to work as a ranch hand. He soon learned Indian sign talk and as an aide to Indian fighter Gen. Hugh L. Scott earned the general's admiration as one of the Army's three great Indian sign talkers.

Firemen Respond To Three Alarms

Sedalia firemen responded to three alarms Saturday.

A divan caught fire at 5:36 a.m. in a home owned and occupied by William Schrober, 2101 East 10th, and was extinguished by the Sedalia firemen. Damage was estimated at $250 to the house and $250 to the divan.

According to a fire department report, the divan caught fire by heat generated from a floor furance situated under the couch. One booster line and two pump buckets were used to extinguish the fire.

At 11:34 a.m. the department sent three trucks to a reported fire in an apartment building at 240 West Third that was in fact a faulty flue which caused a great deal of smoke. There was no fire.

At 3:06 p.m. another false alarm turned out to be trash burning under supervision.

Senate Votes To Cut Age Requirements

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 29 to 25 Saturday to cut the Social Security retirement age from 62 to 60 and to reduce from 60 to 55 the age at which widows can draw benefits.

But the intial cost of the proposal was estimated at $1.7 billion, leading the bill's managers to indicate it would have to be dropped in the Senate-House conference on the Social Security-Welfare bill.

The Senate adopted, 52 to 3, another amendment to provide for payment under Social Security the heavy costs of treatment of persons suffering from chronic kidney disease.

Before the debate ended, Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., Ind-Va., offered an amendment which may turn out to be the solution of the dispute over rival proposals to deal with the problem of welfare families with dependent children.

The Byrd rider would eliminate from the bill all of the operative provisions to handle this problem and set up a test of the various plans to be conducted over the next two years.

The vote on this, however, was put over until Monday or later.

The amendment to reduce the retirement age and the age needed to receive widows' payments was sponsored by Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Under the law now, men and women can receive retirement checks at age 62 but at a level reduced actuarily below what they would receive at the regular quitting age of 65.

The age 60 provision in the amendment calls for a further reduced payment so that the recipient would receive over his remaining lifetime on the average the same total amount he would get if he waited to 65 to begin drawing benefits.

Widows at present can receive benefits at age 60 based on their former husband's Social Security coverage.

The widows applying for benefits at 55 also would get actuarily reduce payments under the amendment.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager for the bill, said the initial cost would be $1.7 billion in a year and that money simply is not available in the Social Security Trust Fund to pay for it.

Byrd replied that there would be no cost to the Fund over a long period of years since those receiving early benefits, by the time they died, would have been paid only about the same total amount as if they had waited to the later years.

IS YOUR CHILD OVER ACTIVE?

Often, a small child with a seemingly large amount of excess energy, who is very restless, aggressive and impulsive is simply described by loving parents as "all boy" or "she's a little devil." However, it is possible that there is an underlying cause that could have ill effects on social development as he or she grows older.

Call it to your doctor's attention if you think your child is hyperactive. The earlier the problem is identified, if there is a problem, and helped, the better the social adjustment that will be made. There are certain prescription drugs available for therapy that can be of great help.

Acupuncture in Sedalia? —Don't Hold Your Breath

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Although the Missouri Board of Healing Arts recently approved the practice of acupuncture by licensed physicians in the state, it will be awhile yet before chronic headache-sufferers in Sedalia can go down for their weekly needle injections, doctors here say.

Acupuncture, an Oriental method of medical treatment, is principally characterized by the insertion of needles at strategic locations in the body. It first gained wide attention in the Western World after New York Times columnist James Reston underwent an emergency acupuncture appendectomy while visiting Red China in August, 1971.

Dr. Jerome Block, president of the Pettis County Medical Society, says "it will probably have to be tested in other areas of the state before it will be tried in Sedalia." He estimated it would be at least five years before the controversial technique would possibly be practiced in Sedalia.

According to Block, primary usage of acupuncture would be for anesthetic rather than pain-killing purposes.

Dr. J. K. Slaton, anesthesiologist at Bothwell Hospital, said he knew "only what he had read in magazine articles" about the practice and indicated he thought the Food and Drug Administration would probably enter the investigative picture before widespread usage of the practice is adopted.

"There are only about a dozen doctors in the entire country practicing acupuncture and these are mostly Oriental doctors in the San Francisco area," Slaton said.

If acupuncture is adopted for future anesthetic purposes, Slaton said it will mark the latest step in an evolutionary process which began with chloroform, proceeded on to ether, and finally to the gas anesthetics used today.

One man whose awareness of acupuncture definitely goes beyond the magazine article stage is Dr. E. Grey Dimond, chancellor of the University of Missouri at Kansas City Medical School. Dimond, one of only two doctors in the United States to have witnessed an actual acupuncture operation in Red China, has written rather than read articles on this ancient-yet-only-recently-famous surgical procedure.

Invited to the People's Republic in September, 1971, by the China Medical Association, Dimond viewed open heart surgery performed via acupuncture.

In describing his experiences for the Journal of The American Medical Association, Dimond wrote not only of acupuncture itself, but of the entire scope of "medicine under Mao" which, he indicated, involved an effective blending of traditional treatment with new practices introduced during the latest Chinese cultural revolution.

This blending of ancient and modern medical practices in regards to acupuncture, Dimond wrote, resulted in the expansion of the traditional acupuncture method of strategic needle insertion. Now, the practice relates to new points of insertion, deeper placement of needles, and, most of all, manipulation of the needle. Needle manipulation, Dimond wrote, involves a one-half inch up-and-down movement accompanied by a simultaneous "to-and-fro twirling of the needle by the thumb and finger."

Contacted by The Democrat-Capital, Dimond was asked if he felt possible public hesitancy would hinder the widespread adoption of the procedure.

"I think it will be quite the other way around," Dimond answered. "People will be demanding it ahead of the profession. They always like to try something new."

Dimond viewed the role of Missouri doctors "as a filter to protect the public" from what he termed possible "quackupuncture."

"There is a national research program being conducted at the National Institute of Health to study acupuncture," Dimond said. It started about six weeks ago..."

He added that research of this type "would have to be done" before extensive utilization of the practice is adopted.

Why did Missouri doctors formally approve the practice of acupuncture when they feel Western investigation of the technique is not complete?

John A. Hailey, executive secretary of the Missouri Board of Healing Arts, which made the decision, said "there had been a lot of discussion about acupuncture and we had an inquiry from a Kansas City physician asking if a doctor who is not licensed could perform acupuncture. The board merely decided that acupuncture could be done only by licensed physicians (which excludes chiropractors). That doesn't say they approved it for the people right now."

Sedalia Physicians Earn Fellowships

Two Sedalia M.D.'s, Dr. C. G. Stauffacher and Dr. D. R. Edwards, were conferred fellowships in the American Academy of Family Practice at a convocation held recently in New York, where the Academy met.

Fellowships are awarded to Academy members who complete approved post graduate study requirements or pass an examination.

Academy members attended various lectures during the meeting, and also heard an address by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on health.

"A pretty country retreat," Washington Irving once observed, "is like a pretty wife. One is always throwing money away decorating it."

Sift Testimony Of Bomb Hearings

Bombing Denial

Admiral Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, talked to newsmen after testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee Friday regarding charges of unauthorized bombing raids over North Vietnam. Moorer was reported to have denied charges made by Navy pilots that the Navy made the same unauthorized bombing raids that led to the retirement of U. S. Air Force commander in Vietnam, Gen. John Lavelle. (UPI)

By JOHN LENGEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a search for conclusions, the Senate Armed Services Committee is sifting through the testimony of now-ended hearings on unauthorized bombing raids against North Vietnam.

On first examination, said Chairman John Stennis, the evidence shows no serious breakdown of the tenet set out in the Constitution that control of the military rests with civilians.

"The facts, as I understand them, do not show any drastic challenge, or drastic violation of civilian authority," Stennis told newsmen Friday. "So far, I'm relieved on that point, but I'm not making any final judgments."

Stennis, D-Miss., said the committee will hear no more witnesses and will meet next week to consider its recommendations.

It also may act next week on President Nixon's nomination of Gen. Creighton Abrams, former U.S. commander in Vietnam, while investigating the unauthorized raids ordered by Gen. John D. Lavelle, commander of the 7th Air Force until he was fired, demoted and retired after disclosure of the raids last November into March.

The hearings at first examined only the Air Force raids Lavelle ordered against North Vietnam targets, but later the Navy was drawn into the inquiry.

Two men who were Navy pilots stationed aboard the USS Constitution during the same period testified about bombing instructions given Navy pilots.

According to Stennis, one said they were told to bomb regardless of whether hostile action was encountered; the other said they were told not to bomb unless there was hostile action.

The inquiry has revolved around the civilian-imposed "protective reaction" rule governing air strikes at that time. The regulation banned U.S. strikes on North Vietnam targets unless American pilots encountered hostile fire or evidence of an impending attack.

The committee has sought to determine whether the rule was merely stretched or, in fact, broken and if so, who was responsible.

Pets Aren't Always Ordinary, But Always Lovable

A rambunctious raccoon...

(Democrat-Capital Photos by P. C. Thomas)

Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Man's yearning to return to nature is evidenced in his indulgence of keeping unusual pets such as the monkey, bob cat, fox, hawk or raccoon. All these species are currently enjoying the status of household pets in and around Sedalia — along with the common domestics like dogs, cats and canaries.

Eyeing a hot dog offered by his master is Cheeko, center, a four-year-old squirrel monkey. John Taylor, 215 West Pettis, who got the primate from a friend over three years ago, says that Cheeko "likes eggs, boiled or fried, and anything that's sweet. He particularly likes women...grabs their hand and caresses..." Grimacing at strangers, raising comotion in his cage, muttering monkey words or hanging down from the cage roof with his 18-inch tail...there's never a dull moment for Cheeko.

Hystricomorpha rodent is the zoological category in which the guinea pig belongs. But the name Becky Cook gave to her pet guinea pig is Squaddles. "When we first got him, he was real small," she said. "Every time we'd pet him, he'd squat. So Cindy (my sister) used to say, 'Stop that squatting, stop that squatting.' So we named him Squaddles." Becky is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cook, West 40th and Marshall.

Squaddles, who shares Becky's bedroom, has his pen very close to her bed, enjoys rabbit pellets, carrots, lettuce and apples, but is definitely averse to the sudsy shampoo he gets "at least once every two weeks."

"Squaddles likes to squeak all night and keep me awake. So I put a cloth cover on his pen. He thinks it's time to go to bed and shuts up," Becky said.

Lately, Squaddles' unusual behavior has Becky guessing. "Recently, I noticed, he goes into a routine...jumping up and down and wiggling his ears. I don't know, could be ear-mites bothering him...or, maybe, that's the way he gets his exercise."

Could it be that Squaddles is deliberately doing this to study Becky's reaction? Using Becky as a guinea pig?

Honor Student Is Behind Bars

By MARY GANZ
Associated Press Writer

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Victor Laurence Taylor earned a bachelor's degree in 21 months with a near-perfect grade average, but he couldn't attend graduation ceremonies at Southern Illinois University.

Taylor is serving a 25-year sentence for bank robbery at the federal penitentiary in Marion, Ill.

Prison officials said Taylor completed his studies through correspondence courses and cooperative programs between the prison, the university and a local junior college.

Taylor received his degree Friday night in special ceremonies at the penetentiary.

Taylor said he studied 60 to 70 hours a week, sometimes finding reading time during his eight-hour-a-day job in the prison's education department. His study schedule netted him a grade-point average of 4.89 out of a possible 5.00.

The 28-year-old convict majored in psychology with a minor in black American studies. This fall he will be admitted to SIU as a graduate student in psychology.

Walter G. Robinson, Jr., director of the SIU black American studies program, told Taylor's story this way:

The Dallas native enlisted in the Navy when he was 17. His Navy recruiter said he would be eligible for pilot training or officers' training program.

However, he was ruled ineligible for aviation training because he was partially color blind and was then passed up for officer training.

It was then, while still in the Navy, that Taylor robbed his first bank. He and a friend took $125,000 from a San Diego naval station bank in November 1963.

He was caught, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ten years. He served four years of that sentence, then went home to Dallas on parole.

However, he was arrested for a jewelry store robbery in Oklahoma and sentenced to 25 years.

In March 1968 he escaped from the state prison in Oklahoma City, and went on a bank-robbing spree through Arkansas and Louisiana. Forty-four days after his escape, he was back in prison—this time in a federal penitentiary in Atlanta, on new bank robbery charges.

In October 1969 he escaped from the Atlanta prison. He was free only a few hours. He was transferred to the maximum security institution at Marion in 1970 because authorities feared he would attempt another escape.

Taylor is up for parole in 1976. But Oklahoma officials will be waiting for him to finish his term for the jewelry store robbery whenever the federal prison releases him.

He has a possible 52 more years in prison, the combined total of the federal and state sentences.

Robinson said he and other SIU officials will intercede for Taylor at his 1976 parole hearing. He said he is also trying to investigate a possible waiver for the unfinished Oklahoma sentence.

Taylor lists his career goals as obtaining a Ph.D., becoming a professor at a major university, publishing books and articles in his field and "living happily ever after."

Japanese and Chinese Could Alter World Power

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — After nearly half a century of bitterness, confusion and uncertainty, the 105 million Japanese have stretched out their hands to 700 million Chinese. Together they could alter the look of Asia.

Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and China's Premier Chou En-lai have concluded their summit meeting with confirmation of what everyone knew all along: the two former enemies have decided to be friends. Recognition is to be followed as soon as possible by an exchange of ambassadors.

Japan, long an economic giant, has become an Asian political power as well. It has done so by unhitching its wagon from the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan, which no longer speaks for all China, and tying it to the People's Republic, the most populous nation on earth.

Late in the 19th century the German Kaiser had a recurring nightmare which he called "The Yellow Peril." He envisioned a China and Japan united against the white man in Asia.

The Kaiser persuaded the young and impressionable Czar of Russia that his fears were real. Together they forced Japan to disgorge the sphere of

The question being asked by the Japanese themselves in Peking is: Where does Japan fit in China's post-summit view of interest it had acquired in Manchuria as a result of its victory in 1895 over Imperial China. It was a fatal error.

That piece of imperialist skullduggery stunned Japan and strengthened the hands of the military faction. The Japanese soon had their revenge. They crushed the Russians in a great naval battle and recovered the Manchurian territory they had lost.

From that time at the turn of the century until 1945, the Japanese regarded China as their particular preserve.

"The Yellow Peril" never materialized because, far from cooperating, China and Japan were mortal enemies.

The defeat of World War II uprooted militarism in Japan. Ironically, China, now under Communist rule, is a major military power with a 2½ million-man army supported with nuclear weapons.

Any thought that together Japan and China may constitute a modern-day "Yellow Peril" appears ridiculous.

Each is an international power. But they have created their new relationship out of a desire to prevent the recurrence of a Pacific war such as the one which left each poor and weak.

things? Is it to be just another of the many countries knocking politely at Peking's door or is there to be a serious economic, political and cultural collaboration?

Only the Chinese can answer this. The Japanese are eager to play their part. They stress the 2,000 years of cultural ties between China and Japan, suggest that Japanese credits can underwrite the Chinese five-year plan, and dream of sharing the aid burden in Southeast Asia.

What they forget is that although there are some things which unite them, there are many others which divide China and Japan.

Although the Japanese borrowed heavily from China, each has a distinctive culture of its own, as alike and as different as England and France. Each believes, perhaps mistakenly, that it understands the other.

The Chinese way of thinking is, like the vast land they inhabit, broad and sweeping. Heaven is its outer limit. Philosophy is a favorite sport.

The Japanese, like their narrow islands, are less able to take the wide view. Their thinking is tortured. Their single-minded loyalty and obedience to authority are remarkable in a rebellious age.

They have produced no great philosophers. But the Japanese have an ability to organize their human and mechanical resources that is the envy even of the organization-minded Communists.

The Japanese successfully invoke the Confucian ideal of duty to family and superior.

The Communist Chinese have dumped Confucius and appeal instead to the spirit of self-sacrifice for the common good. It also works, but it seems to be taking longer than the Japanese method.

Another factor that may serve to keep the Chinese and Japanese apart is the past.

Both Chou and Tanaka said it must not interfere with the future. But the Chinese have not, as Chou said, forgotten. Although the atmosphere between the Japanese and Chinese was cordial, there was evident restraint.

Bitter memories die hard. Until they finally are wiped away and a sure feeling of mutual confidence is achieved, there will be acceptance, but not alliance between these one-time foes and newly made friends.

Political Lawsuits Filed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed suits in U.S. District Court in Kansas City on behalf of the American Party and the Communist Party.

The suits seek to place the names of presidential and vice presidential candidates of the two parties on the Nov. 7 general election ballot. They are class actions.

Plaintiffs in one are Janette M. Evans, Florissant, the American Party of Missouri, John Schmitz and Thomas J. Anderson, the party's candidates for president and vice president.

The other suit was filed by Loretta Waxman, University City, Mo.; the Communist Party, Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner, candidates for president and vice presidents.

The defendant is James C. Kirkpatrick, Missouri secretary of state. The suits would enjoin him from excluding the candidates' names from the ballot.

The plaintiffs state they were unable to get enough signatures before the July 31 deadline to get the candidates on the ballot under Missouri law. They say the law is unconstitutional because it deprives them of their rights under the 14th Amendment.

The suits contend the Missouri law requiring petitions to put candidates on the ballot is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable and puts an unfair burden on national candidates.

Student Union Opened

Marvin Buford, top picture, student body president of State Fair Community College, clips the ribbon at the opening ceremony for the college student union building Friday morning. The $80,000 building has facilities for a book store, cafeteria, lounge and student publications offices, and was built by Tempel-Callision Construction Co. Looking on are, from left, Bill Hopkins, chairman of SFCC's board of trustees; Gene Landon, food services manager of the cafeteria; Lou Tempel, contractor, and Sam Boyle, public relation director of Parkhurst Manufacturing Co., which loaned a trailer used for housing the temporary book store. SFCC President Fred Davis welcomed the guests. Hopkins congratulated the students on their exemplary school spirit and pointed out that SFCC "is the fastest growing junior college in Missouri," with a student body increase of about 200 per cent over the last four years. He announced at the ribbon-cutting that the college will buy a "small luxury liner school bus" for athletic trips and other purposes. In the lower picture, Mrs. Anna Marie Lower, book store manager, is shown helping a customer with a book purchase in the "temporary trailer" situation earlier in the week.

Cosmetics Ingredients Go 'Public'

By PETER WEAVER

At long last you'll be told what kind of ingredients go into all forms of cosmetics from lowly lotions on up to luscious lipsticks.

After years of foot-dragging, the cosmetic and toilet goods manufacturers will have to reveal most of their products' so-called "secret" ingredients. Sometime next year, the government will require mandatory labeling of all ingredients, with the possible exception of certain colors and fragrances.

Some companies are already planning to label ingredients in advance of the expected government order. You may even see some chains of supermarkets and pharmacies jump the gun with their own, ingredient-labeled brands by the end of this year.

For those who have allergic tendencies, labeling of cosmetic ingredients will come as a godsend. Chemicals that are known sensitizers can be spotted on labels and avoided. Up to now, allergic sufferers had to go through painful trial-and-error purchasing to find safe cosmetics.

Even more important for the average consumer who doesn't suffer from allergic reactions, the listing of ingredients in cosmetic and toiletry products can serve as a good guideline for comparison shopping. Buyers will soon realize that many cosmetic products are made of the same stuff. Just the name, the package and, of course, the price are different.

If the ingredients of two lipsticks are the same and one brand is half the price of the other, why pay more if the lower-priced brand looks good and wears well?

The trouble is, there is a confusing hodgepodge of overlapping chemical names used in cosmetic ingredients. That's why industry, government and medical experts are meeting now to formulate a "cosmetic dictionary" of standard ingredients so you won't be faced with several names that mean the same thing. Even so, you'll have to learn some new chemical jargon for cosmetics just the way you had to learn "phosphates" for detergents and MSG (monosodium glutamate) for food additives.

According to Dr. Naomi Kanof, chairman of the American Medical Association's committee on cutaneous health and cosmetics, the following ingredients should be of special interest:

✓ Preservatives such as "parabens" are known to cause allergic reactions in some people. It's important to know what kind of preservative is used in the cosmetic you buy. Also related to the preservatives are the antibacterial agents used in deodorants and special soaps. Hexachlorophene, for example, can photosensitize some people's skin (the chemical plus sunlight gives you a roaring rash).

Many medics question the daily use of antibacterial soaps and other deodorizing products. Some say soap and water work just as well and don't pose a sensitivity hazard.

✓ Colors may be exempt from labeling under proposed government guidelines but they really should be listed. Dr. Stephen D. Lockey, founder of the department of allergy, Lancaster, Pa., General Hospital, claims manufacturers should list a color by its official name and certification number. For example, "yellow No. 5" (tartrazine) is known to give some people an allergic reaction. This color is used in some face powders, lipsticks, nail lacquers, hair rinses, shampoos and bath salts.

✓ Fragrances also might be exempt under the proposed regulations but doctors hope the government will at least make manufacturers list them as "synthetic" or "flower" based. Some people are allergic to coal-tar derivatives (synthetic scents) and others are allergic to flower scents.

Two Are Killed In Car Mishaps

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two single car accidents early today claimed the lives of two persons.

Police said Michael Krabiel, 19, of Kansas City, was killed when his car struck a guard rail on U.S. Highway 50 overpass, flipped over the rail and fell to 63rd street below.

Just west of Grandview in extreme southeastern Kansas City, an unidentified driver died in the flaming wreckage of his car when it left Holmes road and hit a tree.

Ichord Election Is Urged

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., says Missouri's 8th District congressman, Richard H. Ichord, should be re-elected because he is "fiscally responsible."

"He is not a spender and he is just as desirous as I am of regaining control of federal expenditures," Mills said Friday night at testimonial dinner for Ichord.

Mills, chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, ticked off these consequences unless Congress controls spending:

"... Deeper deficits, mounting national debt and interest payments, accelerated inflation, higher interest rates, aggravated trade deficits, further questioning of the dollar abroad, and loss of confidence of the American people in the ability of their government to manage its finances."

He said the increase in the public debt "in less than four years is a whopping $75 billion and it's going higher."

The balance of trade since 1964, he said, has plunged from a $7 billion surplus to about a $7-billion deficit "and the deficit can go even deeper."

Mills, in calling for the reelection of Ichord, said Missouri Democrats might have a little more trouble than usual in electing their candidates unless they work hard.

Ichord, responding, urged Democrats to vote and to make sure their friends also go to the polls. He said the outcome of any election could be changed by the votes of people who don't bother to cast ballots.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton presided at the dinner.

Farm Roundup

Carryover Supplies Reduced By Exports

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brisk export demand for corn and other feed, particularly to the Soviet Union, will help reduce carryover supplies of those grains in the coming years and raise farm prices, says the Agriculture Department.

A revised outlook on the feed grain situation says the carryover for corn, grain sorghum, oats and barley may be whittled down to 41 million tons by the fall of 1973.

The carryover going into the new crop year, which begins Oct. 1 for corn, is about 48 million tons. Although down two million from indications a few weeks ago, the surplus is at a two-year high and about 14 million tons more than a year ago.

Demand has been so heavy, the USDA said, that farm prices for feed grain have been 'unusually strong' for this time of year, on the eve of the fall harvest. Number two yellow corn at Chicago rose from $1.29 per bushel in late August to $1.44 on Sept. 26.

Production of feed from 1972 crops is expected to total about 189 million tons, down 16 million from last year's record crop. Added to the carryover this fall, that will provide about 237 million tons for feeding and export during the 1972-73 season. Although slightly less than last year's record, the supply is still considered large.

Feed use by U.S. farmers is expected to be up in the 1972-73 season, mainly because of more cattle and less use of wheat as feed. In all, the report said, domestic use may be up 2 to 3 per cent from the 164 million tons consumed last year.

Exports are expected to rise 5 to 10 per cent this year, putting total shipments in the range of 28.4 million to 29.7 million tons. The Soviet Union reportedly will buy about seven million of the export total.

In all—domestic use plus exports—total feed use in the year ahead is expected to run about 196 million tons, exceeding the 1972 output.

Corn, the mainstay for feed, is estimated at a crop of 5.1 billion bushels this year. Added to a carryover of 1.1 billion the supply for 1972-73 will be about 6.2 billion bushels, close to the record last season.

But corn requirements should be about 5.3 billion bushels in the coming year, pointing to a moderate dip in the surplus by Oct. 1, 1973.

Screening Program Aids Cancer Fight

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An experimental yearly screening program in New York has resulted in reduction of breast cancer death rates by one-third, says a report on a new five-year study.

However, the manual and X-ray tests reduced the mortality rate only in women over 50.

The report on breast cancer—the No. 1 fatal cancer among women—is to be presented today at the Seventh National Cancer Conference sponsored by the American Medical Society and the National Cancer Institute.

A preview of the study was presented at a Thursday news conference by Sam Shapiro, director of research and statistics of the Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York.

A total of 62,000 female participants in the insurance plan were studied, he said. Half were offered the annual screening and half were not.

Within five years, 42 per cent of the unscreened women who got breast cancer died from it, Shapiro said.

Of those in the study group, only 28 per cent of those who contracted breast cancer died in five years. In addition, some women in the study group refused screening, and the death rate for those who actually underwent examination was only 17 per cent.

The diagnostic tools used in searching for early breast cancer were clinical examination, manual palpation by a doctor and mammography, X-rays of the breast.

Shapiro couldn't explain why the screening program had little effect on women in the under-50 group.

"It may have something to do with the kinds of cancer women get before menopause and the kind they get after menopause, but we just don't know," he said.

It turned out that mammography, which is much more sensitive than the manual examination, played a large part in the reduced mortality for the over-50 women, he said.

Shapiro said that only 2 per cent of the cancers detected by mammography led to deaths in the five-year period.

The results of the five-year study, he said, justify expansion of the screening program to more women. This would be especially important for women who, because of certain aspects of their medical history, are high-risk breast cancer targets, Shapiro said.

On the other hand, he said, more trained medical workers and cheaper screening methods will have to become available before major segments of the female population can be examined this way.

Jays Hang On For 14-13 Win

Official's Call Ends Upset Bid

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

JEFFERSON CITY — What has to rank as one of the most outstanding, gripping, and well you describe it, high school football games in the history of the Smith-Cotton Tigers was played here Friday night.

S-C, rated by one prep forecaster as a 40-point underdog, almost pulled the upset of the year in central-Missouri, only to have a last-second call go against them, thwarting their upset effort against the highly-touted Jefferson City Jays.

Trailing, 14-13, with only eight seconds showing on the clock, Tiger quarterback Paul Kostopolus lofted a pass to wide receiver Rick Carter from the Jays' 40-yard line. Carter, wide open, hauled in the ball and headed for the northwest corner of the end zone and seemingly crossed the goal line. But an official ruled that he went across the goal out of bounds, with his feet still inbounds, as Jays' defensive back Delbert Thomas made contact.

And before anything else could take place, time ran out on the Tigers.

Jefferson City, who holds down the number two position in two state-wide newspaper polls, not only notched their second Central Missouri Conference victory with the 14-13 escape act, but also is only one win away from grabbing their 14th CMC championship under head coach Pete Adkins.

The Tigers held a 7-6 advantage through most of the second quarter and all of the third period. The score came when junior fullback Mike Boggs broke over the Jays' stout defense for a one-yard touchdown with 11:05 left in the second stanza. With the loss the Bengals missed not only their upset chances, but also dropped their 14th straight game to the defending CMC title-holders.

"I know that I was inbounds when I crossed the goal line," said Carter after the game. "I went out of bounds, but I know that I crossed the goal line first," he said as he stood in utter disbelief, as did the rest of his teammates in the Tigers' lockerroom.

"It sure looked like he was inbounds," commented head S-C football mentor Greg Cook as he leaned against the outside wall of his team's dressing room. "It's another one of those breaks that didn't go our way," he continued.

The Jays, who had not been scored on in their first three outings this season, drew first blood in the contest, as sophomore halfback Delbert Thomas skirted around his right end from the Tigers' eight for the initial score of the game. Greg Wilson, a guard by trade, tried to tack on the extra point with 2:16 left in the contest, but the kick was wide of its mark.

The Tigers came storming back ans they rode two big plays to set up their first tally of the night.

On the ensuing kickoff, senior speedster Jack Cook raced all the way back to the Jays' 41 from his own 12. That put the Tigers into scoring position.

After an offsides penalty that set the Tigers back to the Jays' 46, Kostopolus hit Carter on a 35-yard pass to move the pigskin to the Jefferson City 11. Kostopolus on a keeper, went to the 10-yard stripe, before time ran out in the first period.

The Bengals found the other end of the field to their liking in the second quarter, as sophomore Marvin Spruell picked up two yards on the first play. On a third-and-seven situation, Boggs got loose and went to the Jays' three.

The key down of the drive was on fourth and two, which S-C converted as Cook moved the ball to the Jefferson City one for the first-and-goal. Boggs went over on the next play and the Bengals were in business, with a 6-6 tie. Senior place-kicker Jim Downing tacked on the extra point and for the first time this season, the Jays found themselves playing catch-up.

And that's the way it stayed, until early in the fourth period, when Terry Nienaber blasted through the middle of the Tigers' line from the five, to put the Jays back in the driver's seat. Jim Stanford raced in for the two-point conversion and the Jays led, 14-7.

S-C, who had two brilliant opportunities in the third quarter to take command as they moved inside the Jays' 15 on both occasions, got back on the board in the last 40 seconds of play, when Kostopolus and Spruell connected for a 62-yard pass play. That pulled S-C to within one, 14-13.

The Bengals elected to go for the two-point conversion as Kostopolus pitched the ball to Spruell. But the Jays' defense stopped him at the one.

As the Tigers lined up for the kickoff, it came as little surprise that they went with an on-side boot. But the way it was executed did come as somewhat of a surprise.

Downing placed the ball on the kicking tee, trotted back and signaled. As he approached the ball, sophomore Rick McRoy, stationed next to the ball, moved in and booted it.

The ball dropped at the Tigers' 49 and then bounded into Jefferson City territory, where junior defensive end Dan Knievel wrestled it away from the Jays' front line, with :28 showing on the clock.

Kostopolus tossed a nine-yard strike to Carter, but he could not get out of bounds and the Bengals signaled for a time out, with :08 left and the ball on the Jays' 40.

Kostopolus went to the bench to discss the final play of the game with the Tigers' head coach.

As the teams lined up, the Jays' defense smelled pass, but they did not cover Carter closely as he raced, unmolested, deep into the Jefferson City secondary.

Kostopolus spotted him and hit him with a perfect strike. Carter headed for the corner of the end zone and dove in as he was hit by Thomas.

The only thing left was the officials' decision. He ruled that Carter had been knocked out of bounds before he crossed the end zone. This brought Cook and the rest of his coaching staff onto the field. Cook argued with the official but it was to no avail and the score stood 14-13.

In the overall statistics, S-C held the advantage, gaining 230 yards against the Jays.

But in the rushing department, the Jays led, 159-84.

Kostopolus hit on five of nine attempts through the air, giving the Tigers the overall advantage.

Probably the most significant point in the game came in the turnover department, where the Jays lost three of six fumbles. Those fumbles almost cost them their second conference win, as S-C made use of them and got inside Jefferson City's 15-yard line twice in the third period.

However, the Jays were able to hold S-C off the board.

Friday night, the Bengals return to Jennie Jaynes Stadium to take on the Mexico Bulldogs in the annual homecoming contest. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

Thomas Turned Inside

Jays' Delbert Thomas (43) is turned inside during this first-period run against the Smith-Cotton Tigers, Friday night in Jefferson City, by S-C's Jack Cook (22), Jim Sanders (12) and Ken McDowell (88). Thomas was credited with 69 yards on 12 carries, but here he is held to only a one-yard gain.

Send Carter Deep ...

It Is Only A Matter Of Inches

Was he or wasn't he? That's a question that will be asked for many years to come, when players and fans recount the 1972 Smith-Cotton, Jefferson City football game.

Was Rick Carter inbounds when he crossed the goal line with no time left on the clock as the Tigers' nearly made good their effort in upsetting the highly favored Jays?

Or was he, as the official (whose name could not be obtained) ruled, knocked out of bounds by defensive back Delbert Thomas?

Only one person "really" knows — the official. But if you're a Smith-Cotton fan, obviously the call didn't suit you.

However, one must remember that that official was right on the play, not more than three yards away from Carter and Thomas as Carter dove for the end zone, crossed the line with, what seemingly would have given the Tigers their first victory over the Jays in the last 15 years.

With Jefferson City clinging to a slim, 14-13 margin, and the Tigers with the ball on the Jays' 40, junior quarterback Paul Kostopolus hit Carter with a pass. Carter headed toward the corner of the end zone, and dove in as Thomas finally caught him and made contact as time ran out. That score would have pulled the Bengals to possibly the biggest upset of the season in Missouri high school football.

Carter claimed after the game that he was inbounds ... so did his head coach, Greg Cook, who has been on the losing end of three Jefferson City, Smith-Cotton scores in his three-year tenure here.

"I just don't know what to say," Cook said grimly as he and some of his assistants congregated outside the Bengals' lockerroom after the game.

"Two years ago up here (in Jefferson City), we had them going — really going, and he (Pete Adkins, the Jays' head coach) got on the officials and all of a sudden, everything seemed to go against us — I just don't know," Cook continued.

"Then last year, at our place, we had them going again, and again they got away," he added.

Football, like baseball, hockey, well, you name it, is a game of inches. And that cliche would certainly apply to Friday night's encounter in Public School Stadium in Jefferson City, where, as in the season's opener in Marshall, inches made the difference in a win and a loss on the Tigers' ledger.

It was only by a matter of a few inches that the Tigers' missed a chance with :38 left in the contest to go ahead of the Jays on a two-point conversion attempt, after S-C had tallied their second TD. That failed and the Tigers had to regroup and try another tactic.

That tactic, the on-side kick on the ensuing kickoff, worked as junior defensive end Dan Knievel pounced on the ball at the Jays' 48 — that by a matter of inches.

But it was the officials' ruling that, by less than a foot, Carter was pushed out of bounds at the one-foot line, preserving the Jays' victory.

Fans who saw the season's opener in Marshall well remember that it was just by a matter of a few inches that Henry Mason intercepted one of the Tigers' last-ditch passes late in the game, which turned the ball over and ended the Tigers' hopes of a season-opening win.

As the crowd filed out of Public School Stadium Friday night, they knew they had witnessed one of the greatest high school football games ever played in Missouri.

Most were happy (those from Jefferson City), the others weren't so happy (those from Sedalia).

And so the plot continues in this long rivalry between the two schools, but it won't be until next year that the Tigers get another chance at loosening the Jays' grip on the Central Missouri Conference's football title.

You can bet that Cook won't ever forget this game — you can also bet that the sophomores and juniors on this year's S-C squad won't either.

Indians Fall To Windsor

LAKE OZARK — The Windsor Greyhounds picked up their first Tri-County Conference victory of the season here Friday night with an 18-10 win over School of the Osage.

Windsor, who fell behind 7-0 in the first quarter, when Gary Haupt raced 27 yards for the Indians' first score, broke the game open on a 91-yard pitchout play in the third stanza, that went from quarterback Larry Hodge to Mike Summers.

Hodge carried for about 20 yards and then pitched back to Summers, who went the distance.

Osage led at halftime, 10-6, as Haupt booted a 25-yard field goal.

The first Greyhounds' TD of the game came in the second stanza as Darrell Sypes crashed into paydirt from the one.

The final Windsor touchdown came in the final period as Mike Pile scored on an 18-yard run.

Windsor will host California in another league game Friday when California visits the Greyhounds.

Windsor is now 1-3 overall in 1972.

Blitzkrieg Win, 31-6

OSU Stuns Buffs

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Alton Gerard, junior college transfer from Salinas, Cal., bashed over for three touchdowns and an inspired Oklahoma State defense produced a flurry of Colorado turnovers as the Cowboys shocked the third-ranked Buffaloes 31-6 in the Big Eight opener for both schools here Saturday afternoon.

The Cowboys, directed superbly out of the wishbone by junior quarterback Brent Blackman, burst out to a 21-0 halftime lead as the Buffs gave up the ball three times on the fumbles and once on an interception.

Blackman capped an 80-yard drive with a 16-yard touchdown strike to split end Steve Pettes to get the Cowboys rolling midway in the first half.

Gerard, 195-pound halfback who led the nation's junior colleges in scoring at Hartnell, Cal., scored his first TD on a one-yard plunge midway in the second period.

The TD was set up by Alvin Brown's interception of a Joe Duenas pass that put the ball on the CU 30.

Gerard, who did not start, plowed over again from the one after another 80-yard march late in the second period and dashed in on a nine-yard scamper early in the third quarter.

Eddie Garrett's 37-yard field goal, with 6:55 remaining, sealed the major football upset.

OSU completely bottled up the vaunted Colorado ground attack and their star tailback Charlie Davis in the first half. Davis finally got untracked with gains of 15 and 19 yards in a 50-yard scoring drive in the third period, capped by Bo Matthews' two-yard run.

A two-point conversion try, after a fake kick, failed.

For His 3rd TD

Alton Gerard, right halfback for Oklahoma State, veritably terrorized third-ranked Colorado Saturday, running for not one or two, but three touchdowns. The junior college transfer led the Cowboys to a 31-6 victory at Stillwater, Okla., before a crowd of 38,500. (UPI)

Nebraska Chalks Up 2nd Straight Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Brillant Johnny Rodgers danced for two touchdowns and Gary Dixon scored three times on short runs as seventh-ranked Nebraska crushed Minnesota 49-0 Saturday.

Although Dixon scored on runs of four, two, and six yards and All-American Rich Glover led a stingy defense, it was Rodgers who stood out as Nebraska won its eighth straight from the Gophers to run its season record to 3-1 and leave Minnesota winless after three games.

Rodgers returned a punt 64 yards for a third period touchdown in a twisting, turning run which brought a Memorial Stadium record crowd of 76,217 to its feet roaring when he spun and trotted backwards the last five yards into the end zone.

Rodgers scored again in the third period on a two-yard run to become the Nebraska all-time leading touchdown-maker with 35 and caught seven passes for 127 yards to set a Big Eight career record for receiving yardage, 2,070.

The combination of Dave Humm throwing and Roders receiving led the Huskers to a 28-0 lead at the half. The points came on Dixon's three runs and an eight-yard Humm pass to Dave Gaylor to end a lengthy drive.

Meanwhile, Glover and his "Black Shirts" defensive teammates throttled the Gophers with the exception of one second period drive which ran out of downs on the Nebraska 24.

Sooners Crush Clemson

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—All-America halfback Greg Pruitt scampered for three touchdowns and reserve fullback Tim Welch gained 158 yards Saturday to power the second-ranked Oklahoma Sooners to a 52-3 victory over Clemson.

Pruitt scored on runs of five, four and one yards and gained 52 yards over-all to move into third place among OU's all-time rushing leaders, but Welch, starting in place of injured Leon Crosswhite, kept the Sooners' high-powered offense rolling with consistent gains up the middle as the outmanned Tigers concentrated on protecting their flanks.

The Sooners led only 7-0 after the first quarter, but they exploded for 17 points in the last seven minutes before intermission to break the game open.

The victory was the third straight lopsided triumph for the Sooners, who still have not yielded a touchdown this season. The loss was the second in three games for Clemson.

Clemson defended stubbornly during the game's early stages but Oklahoma's wishbone T offense wore down the defenders, turning the contest into a rout.

Senior quarterback Dave Robertson added a pair of touchdowns on short runs and freshman Joe Washington dazzled the Clemson defenders for a 61-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter. Junior defensive back Clyde Powers got the final Oklahoma tally with a 57-yard run after picking a Clemson fumble out of the air.

Clemson denied the Sooners a shutout when Eddie Siegler booted a 49-yard fieldgoal on the game's final play.

'Cats Bomb Tampa

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Don Calhoun shocked Tampa with a 63-yard touchdown run just before halftime and frustrated Kansas State turned three Spartan fumbles into touchdowns to claim a 31-7 intersectional football victory Saturday.

The Wildcats, who evened their record at 2-2 after faltering badly the previous two weeks against Brigham Young and Arizona State, pinned the first loss of the season on Tampa after three victories.

Calhoun, who carried 23 times for 104 yards, also scored K-State's third touchdown for a 21-0 lead on a one-yard plunge early in the third quarter. That followed a Wildcat recovery of a fumble by Fred Solomon on the second half kickoff at the Tampa 32.

The Spartans fought back from that misfortune to march 80 yards in nine plays for their only touchdown. Paul Orndorff scored on a 15-yard run up the middle.

Tampa also had an apparent 34-yard touchdown pass from Buddy Carter to Orndorff called back by an offside penalty with two minutes left.

Kansas State added to its score with Keith Brumley's 28-yard field goal early in the final period and a 19-yard scoring pass from reserve Steve Grogan to Steve Johnson after a punt fumble recovery with 42 seconds left.

Jayhawks Downed By Florida State

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Golden-armed Gary Huff fired four touchdown passes and Barry Smith snared two of them as 16th-ranked Florida State outscored Kansas 44-22 in an intersectional football game Saturday.

All of Huff's payoff pitches came in the first half, giving the Seminoles a 28-7 halftime advantage. Huff heaved 27 and 9 yards to Smith, the first one putting Florida State ahead for good.

The other Huff touchdown tosses were for 14 yards to Gary Parris and three yards to Ed Davis.

Kansas threw a scare into the Seminoles early in the fourth quarter when the Jayhawks slipped 99 yards on eight plays, with Dave Jaynes passing 33 yards to Bruce Adams and then sneaking gver for the two extra points to slice the Seminole margin to 31-22.

Enraged by this development, Huff and the Seminoles rolled 80 yards with Hodges Mitchell going over from the one. Ahmet Askin, who kicked a 32-yard field goal, converted after the first five FSU touchdowns.

Sophomore Mike Davison scored another touchdown in the last minute on a 17-yard run.

Delvin Williams ran two yards for a Kansas first-period touchdown and Bob Helmbacher's conversion tied the score at 7-7. Bob Miller got a three-yard touchdown run for Kansas in the third period.

Yastrzemski Keys Boston Past Birds

BALTIMORE (AP)—Hot-hitting Carl Yastrzemski drove in two runs with a single and a home run Saturday night, leading the Boston Red Sox to a 3-1 American League victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The triumph kept Boston 1½ games ahead of Detroit in the AL East race. Both teams have four games remaining, including three against each other beginning Monday at Detroit.

Marty Pattin, 16-13, earned the victory and Yastrzemski, who has led Boston's September surge, keyed the Sox offense.

Boston nicked loser Pat Dobson, 16-18, for a run in the first inning when Tommy Harper singled, stole second and scored on Yastrzemski's single.

The Orioles, eliminated from the East race by Boston Friday night, tied the score in the third. Mark Belanger singled, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on Paul Blair's hit.

Boston took the lead for keeps in the fourth.

Thornton, Race In Title Match

Les Thornton risks his local unbeaten status in a bid to wrest the Central States championship from Harley Race in Convention Hall Tuesday evening.

The 245-pound Britisher has twice defeated Race in recent weeks, once with a knockout in a five-round boxing bout and last week in a Texas-style "death match."

Added interest in the title match will be provided by special National Wrestling Alliance-authorized lumber jack rules. These provide for the stationing of other heavyweights outside the ropes to assure that the title contestants remain inside. Matchmaker Gust Karras said six wrestlers will be on "guard duty."

Omar Atlas will take on giant Black Angus in a special event. If Atlas manages a fall against Angus, he will then take on Angus' manager, Percival A. Friend, in another 10-minute match.

Other events pit Natureboy Kirby against Danny Little Bear and Ronnie Etchison against Billy Howard.

Williams Resigns Manager Position

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Hall of Famer Ted Williams has decided not to manage the Texas Rangers baseball club after the current season is completed, Robert E. Short, president of the club, announced Saturday.

Williams, who had a five-year managerial contract with the team, thus will leave after a four-year term as manager but will remain with the club in an advisory capacity.

"I will be forever grateful for Ted for returning to baseball and devoting four years to managing," Short said.

"We are sorry to lose his direction on the field but sympathize with his desire for a less demanding role. Ted has given 100 per cent of himself and his return to baseball provided the needed stimulant to the sport."

Short and general manager Joe Burke said a new manager will be announced shortly after this season.

"It was my decision and mine alone," Williams said. "I had personal reasons and can't give anything more than that. I'm sure this is the right decision for myself and for the team."

Short said Williams will remain with the club in any position he wishes, with no title and no specific responsibility.

Williams became manager of the Washington Senators four years ago.

Simones Optimstic Despite Sixth Place X-Country Finish

(Democrat-Capital Service)

Simones indicated his squad's attitude is on the upswing and said the team was bolstered by excellent races on the part of two Tiger harriers.

The cross country mentor noted especially the efforts of sophomore Steve Fisher and junior Jim Lovercamp.

Running on a 2.3-mile course, Fisher turned in a time of 10:55 to grab eighth in the individual finishes. Lovercamp took 22nd with a time of 11:17, a full 17 seconds faster than his time last year.

Simones pointed out that Alan Adams, who finished seventh and beat Fisher by only one second in a time of 10:54, bested Fisher by about 25 seconds in a time of 10:54, bested Fisher by about 25 seconds at last week's Raytown South Invitational in Swope Park. He noted that the smaller difference in the Marshall showed clearly that Fisher is steadily gaining on the top runners.

Simones also expressed great pride in the performance of Lovercamp.

Taking first in the individual finishes was Brad Hawthorne, of Lee's Summit, who broke his own course record and set a new one of 10:33. The distance speedster spearheaded an attack by his squad which fell just short of the winning team, St. Louis Parkway North. The St. Louis squad had the low score of 62 at the meet while Lee's Summit was only eight points away.

Raytown South edged out St. Louis Parkway West for third on the basis of performances by the teams' sixth men. Identical point totals of 73 were recorded but Raytown South's sixth runner came in 28th, four positions ahead of Parkway West's sixth man.

Fort Osage of Independence took fifth with 108 points while the Bengals got sixth with 132.

Robert Mayes took 31st in a time of 11:34 to account for S-C's third best effort, barely beating out C. E. Baldwin who took 32nd in 11:36. The other runner adding to the Bengal total was David Moore who timed in at 11:48 for 39th. Rounding out the S-C effort was Bob Buehn, 12:06 for 46th, and Jeff Barnes, 12:13 for 50th.

Simones revealed that the squad has only been working on speed for a few days. He noted the workouts from now on will involve less total miles in an effort to trim down times. The coach also said he feels his team is slowly but steadily gaining on the top schools, primarily from Kansas City and St. Louis.

The Tiger harriers face a tough schedule this week, taking on Jefferson City, Columbia Hickman and Hannibal at Hannibal Friday afternoon in the Central Missouri Conference meet. The next morning the Bengals will rise early to travel to Kansas City's Swope Park, site of the Ruskin Invitational.

Of interest at the Ruskin meet is the unusual method of scoring. Instead of placements, totals are made up of team times. Simones explained large gaps between runners can play crucial roles instead of not having an effect on the final outcome as is the normal case.

BULLETIN

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oakland, baseball's American League Western champion, slowed Kansas City's drive for third place in the division by bouncing the Royals 10-5 Saturday night.

The A's roughed up starter Monty Montgomery for eight hits and six runs before he was knocked out in the fifth inning and nailed with his third loss against three victories.

Auburn Upsets Tennessee, 10-6

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Terry Henley's running and a stingy defense led by Ken Bernich and Danny Sanspree led Auburn to a 10-6 upset of fourth-ranked Tennessee Saturday and marked Auburn as a football power again in the Southeastern Conference.

The Tigers, unranked and unimpressive in their first two victories, continued their mastery over Tennessee.

Ralston: We Can't Afford To Make Mistakes

DENVER (AP) — "It's a team that knows what it has to do and does it very well," Denver Coach John Ralston said of the Kansas City Chiefs. "We just can't afford to make mistakes in Sunday's game."

The Broncos made plenty of them last week in the 37-14 loss to San Diego.

"You can't have six interceptions," Ralston says. "You can't rough the kicker and give them another series of downs. You can't clip. You can't have the center snap go wrong on a scrimmage play." All of that happened last week, and it was a departure from the good form Denver had shown in its four previous outings, including the last three preseason contests.

Sunday's contest at Mile High Stadium likely will mark a turning point for either Denver or Kansas City. Both have 1-1 records, as have all four teams in the AFC West Division.

The Broncos, impressive in their 30-17 season-opening victory over Houston, are hoping to establish credentials as a solid contender in the division. The Chiefs, meanwhile, who lost to Miami but came back to slug out a 20-17 victory over a stubborn New Orleans team Monday night, are looking to regain the championship form that has been their trademark for the past several seasons.

The Chiefs hold a commanding 22-2 lead in the series between the two teams, with Denver's last victory coming at home in 1970.

Ralston says he feels there's not that much difference between the two clubs.

"The biggest single thing we've got to do at this stage is get these guys turned around where they expect to win a football game every week, where they go into every one with that intense attitude and feeling," Ralston says. "But we were flat last week, we weren't mentally ready, and that's my responsibility."

The Chiefs appear healthy for the contest. Offensive guard Ed Budde, who missed the New Orleans game with a knee injury, is a likely starter.

Running back Ed Podolak has been the main offensive threat thus far, leading the conference with 14 receptions and leading the team in rushing with 130 yards in the two games. Quarterback Len Dawson has been especially sharp, connecting on 69 per cent of his passes including 21 of 29 Monday night.

Steve Ramsey, who returned to the San Diego game after biting through his tongue early in the contest, suffered three interceptions in the contest, as did backup veteran Charley Johnson. Ramsey should get the starting nod again.

Running backs Floyd Little and Bobby Anderson are expected back in the lineup. Little suffered severe bruises on each thigh last week, and Anderson sat out the contest with a slight shoulder separation.

"It's almost as if we are starting a new season," the Chiefs' Hank Stram says of the four-way tie in the division.

"It's a new race from here on out."

Top California, 34-27

'Second-String' Backs Aid MU To 2-1 Record

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A couple of second-string running backs, Chuck Link and Ray Bybee, led the Missouri Tigers to a 20-point first-quarter explosion and a 34-27 intersectional football victory over California Saturday.

Missouri led 27-0 at the half, but was almost snowed under in the second half by California quarterback Jay Cruze, who took over for Steve Bartkowski late in the second half.

Cruze passed for four touchdowns and 342 yards, hitting 18 of 25 passes. He broke the school passing yardage record of 321, set by Dave Penhall against Stanford in 1969.

Link, a junior from Aurora, Mo., scored on runs of 17, 4 and 7 yards. Before this game, his action had been limited to one pass reception. He had no rushing vardage before Saturday, when he totaled 53 in six carries.

Bybee, a sophomore from East Moline, Ill., rushed for 153 yards in the first half, including a 39-yard gallop, and scored Missouri's first touchdown from one yard. He finished with 185 yards in 27 carries.

The Tigers scored three times within six minutes of the first quarter and tallied their most points for a quarter in four years.

John Cherry hit Jim Sharp with a 38-yard pass for Missouri's second touchdown and Link added the third of the quarter on a 17-yard run.

Link's other touchdown came in the second and third periods.

Cruze, a senior, threw a 46-yard scoring pass to Fred Leathers in the third quarter. He hit Steve Sweeney on a six-yard touchdown pass in the last period after setting it up with a 70-yard pass play to Sammy Burns.

He fired another 29-yard TD pass to Leathers with 5:11 left, and came back two minutes later with a 10-yard scoring toss to Sweeney.

Missouri's defense threw Bartkowski for 40 yards in losses in the first half.

The winners were rolling up 187 yards in offense in the first quarter while holding Cal to one net yard.

Until Cruze took over in the second half, it was Missouri's best offensive show of the season. Link's first touchdown was set up by a 33-yard pass from halfback Jack Bastable to John Kelsey.

Bybee's 21-yard romp preceded Sharp's touchdown catch. A 44-yard pass from Cherry to Tom Reamon set up Link's third touchdown.

California did not penetrate the 50-yard line until 1:37 left in the first half.

Missouri, 2-1, plays Oklahoma State next weekend. Cal, 2-2, meets Ohio State.

Pressure Incarnate

Missouri's Tom Kellett (34) really puts on the pressure as California U.'s quarterback Steve Bartkowski (10) fades back to pass in the first quarter of the Mizzou-California game played at Columbia Saturday. The Tigers, after leading 27-0 at the half, barely hung on for a 34-27 victory. (UPI)

ISU Blanks New Mexico

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Sophomore Mike Strachan rambled for two touchdowns and 187 yards Saturday and Iowa State's defense produced four turnovers as Iowa State blanked New Mexico 31-0 in an intersectional football game.

Iowa State, 3-0, recovered two fumbles and came up with two pass interceptions that eventually led to three touchdowns and a field goal. New Mexico fell to 1-2.

Strachan, rushing for 100 yards plus for the third straight Saturday, scored on runs of 34 and four yards in the second half as Iowa State broke away from a 14-0 halftime lead.

Iowa State marched 67 yards in nine plays on its second possession to take the lead. Dave McCurry's fumble recovery started the drive and a one-yard George Amundson to Kieth Krupfle pass netted the touchdown.

Barry Hill's recovery of a New Mexico fumble that rolled into the end zone stopped a Lobo drive in the second quarter and the Cyclones then moved 80 yards for a touchdown with Amundson rambling the final 50 yards on a quarterback option.

Ted Jornov's interception set up Iowa State's quick third quarter touchdown. Strachan ran 16 yards on the next play and then bolted 34 yards for the touchdown on his next carry.

Iowa State's final touchdown drive covered 73 yards in the fourth quarter with Amundson throwing four key passes for a total of 46 yards. Strachan went the final four yards.

Tom Goedjen's 35-yard field goal with 1:35 to play capped the scoring. But McCurry's interception at his own 27 started the march.

Tiger Hopes Still Alive

DETROIT (AP) — Exploding for six runs in the first inning, the Detroit Tigers went on to defeat the Milwaukee Brewers 13-4 Saturday and keep their American League Eastern Division championship hopes alive.

The Tigers moved within one game of front-running Boston, pending the outcome of the Red Sox' night game against the Baltimore Orioles.

Detroit's victory eliminated the third-place New York Yankees from the division race and left only the Tigers and Red Sox in contention.

The Tigers chased Milwaukee starter Skip Lockwood after eight men came to bat, climaxed by Ed Brinkman's home run. The splurge tagged the Brewer right-hander with his 13th loss in 20 decisions.

Cards Need 16 To Down Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Ted Sizemore knocked in the winning run with a single in the 16th inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 2-1 National League victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

The marathon contest, marked by Lou Brock's 2,000th career hit for St. Louis, took almost five hours to play.

Sizemore's hit broke a tie that existed from the seventh inning, when the Cardinals' Jose Cruz hit a home run with two out.

Ted Simmons opened the 16th inning rally with a double and moved to third on an infield error that allowed Bill Stein to reach first. Sizemore then singled to left off Tom Phebus.

The Cubs scored their only run in the fourth when Ron Santo doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Glenn Beckert's single to left.

Brock reached the 2,00-hit career level with a single past the mound in the 15th inning.

Favor Chiefs But Not Cards

Expect Close One Between 'Pokes, Pack

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the Dallas Cowboys riding for a fall?

The Cowboys have won 12 consecutive regular season and playoff games in the National Football League. They go after No. 13 Sunday against the Green Bay Packers, once a nemesis of Dallas teams.

Dallas hasn't been overly impressive in its two victories so far this season. Nevertheless, the Cowboys won—and that's what counts.

The Pack, meanwhile, isn't back—at least not back to the halcyon days of Vince Lombardi. Green Bay is, however, greatly improved over last year. If Scott Hunter stays healthy, the Packers could pull some surprises this season.

Without further delay, except to softly mention that last week's 6-6-1 showing left the two-week slate at 16-9-1 for .640, here's the latest Fearless Football Forecast:

Dallas 24, Green Bay 17—The Cowboys do seem destined for a fall, but this isn't the week. Or is it? Anyway, the Dallas defense should be the difference.

Minnesota 21, Miami 20—If the game was in Florida, the pick probably would be the other way around. With Fran Tarkenton scrambling for the Vikings and Bob Griese performing for the Dolphins, it should be a dandy game.

Washington 17, New England 10—The Redskins continue to win under the quarterbacking of Billy Kilmer, with Larry Brown grinding out yardage on the ground. The Patriots were upset winners last week. They won't be this time.

Cleveland 31, Cincinnati 28—Look for a minor upset here. The Bengals are unbeaten, but the Browns just may have found the quarterback they've been looking for in Mike Phipps.

New York Jets 35, Houston Oilers 21—Joe Namath certainly can't duplicate last week's six-touchdown effort. Or can he? The Jets' pass defense is porous enough, however, that Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini may have some success with his throwing.

Los Angeles 20, Atlanta 17—The Falcons never have beaten the Rams in regular season play. They won't this time, either, even though Roman Gabriel's status is uncertain.

Kansas City 17, Denver 14—For a team that was supposed to win the title in the American Football Conference, the Chiefs have been far from impressive in posting a 1-1 mark. They shouldn't have to be too impressive, however, to beat the Broncos.

San Diego 21, Oakland 18—This week's upset special. It doesn't show on paper but it's time San Diego started being the surprise of the AFC West, and maybe this Sunday's the day.

Pittsburgh 31, St. Louis 24—If the Steelers can cure their fumblitis, they shouldn't have too much trouble with the Cardinals. Gary Cuozzo may get the starting quarterback assignment for St. Louis. He won't score touchdowns on the ground, however, while Pittsburgh's Terry Bradshaw will.

Detroit 17, Chicago 7—The Lions have won seven of the last eight meetings between these old rivals. They should make it eight-for-nine this time behind Greg Landry.

San Francisco 34, New Orleans 14—Even if John Brodie isn't ready for the 49ers, Steve Spurrier, the No. 2 quarterback for San Francisco, has had some memorable days of his own.

Baltimore 21, Buffalo 20—Or it might be the other way around if the Colts don't wake up. This should be the week that they do wake up, however, and the Bills can't pull off two consecutive upsets. Or can they?

New York 21, Philadelphia 21—Yes, a tie. When two losers meet, there should be a winner—but there doesn't have to be. The oddsmakers favor the Giants by a touchdown. We favor the Eagles by a touchdown. Hence a tie is forecast.

Watergate Opinion Almost Split

Sedalians were just about evenly divided in response to the latest Democrat-Capital survey which asked: "The Watergate incident, in which five men were arrested June 17 inside Democratic National Committee headquarters with electronic bugging gear, has been tied to the highest levels of the Nixon campaign organization by Democrats. Do you think this is the case?

Of those who responded, 53 per cent felt the bugging arrests were not directly connected to the Nixon campaign organization, with one respondent claiming the entire incident was "a conspiracy to try to hurt Nixon."

Another wrote, "The whole thing sounds absurd. The Nixon people are in a good position. Why would they want to invite trouble by snooping around the Democratic headquarters. Nothing to gain and so much to lose."

Those sentiments were somewhat echoed by another respondent who said, "Although I've read column after column (including Jack Anderson's, which I seldom believe) and have listened to TV coverage of Sen. McGovern's and Larry O'Brien's outrage, common sense tells me the well-organized, well-financed Republican party wouldn't take such an unnecessary chance for embarrassment, or worse.

...I am confident President Nixon had absolutely nothing to do with it," the writer continued, "and I feel the reason he didn't first call for a clarification of what happened was that he felt people realized it was really ridiculous to consider this as part of the Republicans' plan for re-election."

Of the 47 per cent who felt the Watergate incident could be traced to the White House, one said, "It is very evident to us. I am sick of secrecy and deception in high places. Now crime!!!"

Another wrote that "when the men who were arrested June 17, with bugging equipment can be directly linked to the White House and the Committee to Re-elect the President, surely the Republicans cannot expect to fool the public into thinking that no one at the White House knew anything about this. The Republicans do not regard this as an issue. One incident is not an issue but this is one of many credibility gaps Nixon doesn't care to comment on."

The respondent concluded by writing, "If only Martha Mitchell would tell all now, instead of waiting until after the election."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Sentencing has been set for Oct. 16 in the federal district court of Judge James H. Meredith for a Kennett, Mo., man found guilty of income tax violations.

David C. Cohen, 46, an insurance accountant, was found guilty of filing false tax returns for 1965 and 1966 in an attempt to evade his individual income tax and of willfully subscribing to his return in 1966 when he did not believe it to be true and accurate.

Punishment for filing false returns is by fine of $10,000 or imprisonment up to five years for each year and punishment for willfully subscribing to a return known not be true and accurate is by fine of $5,000 and imprisonment up to three years or both.

Cohen was charged in a four-count indictment for the alleged offenses in March, 1972. He was charged with willfully failing to report income of $6,301.45 in 1965 and $21,325.27 in 1966.

Asbestos Exposure New Cancer Worry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A type of cancer caused by exposure to asbestos threatens the lives of thousands of World War II American shipyard workers, a cancer authority says.

The disease—a tumor affecting the lining of the chest or abdomen—has only recently begun to appear, 30 years after exposure, the National Cancer Conference was told Friday.

Dr. Irving J. Selikoff, director of the environmental sciences laboratory of Mt. Sinai School of Medicine in New York, said it was possible that 32,500 to 225,000 of the 3.25 million World War II shipyard workers still living could be killed by the disease.

Selikoff said it had been determined that a maximum of 7 per cent of shipyard workers directly exposed to asbestos had died of mesothelioma, but that no figures were available on workers whose exposure was indirect.

He said the disease, which has surfaced only in recent years, was "a new and potentially very serious environmental cancer" and the cases occurring as a result of indirect occupational exposure to asbestos will be "another unhappy legacy of World War II."

Selikoff said it has been known for almost 20 years that occupational exposure to asbestos is "associated with increased risk of lung cancer."

He said that until recently mesothelioma was so rare that it did not warrant separate classification as a cause of death.

"In the past decade," Selikoff said, "these tumors have suddenly become much less rare. Series of 25 to 80 or more cases are not uncommon, and have been reported in many parts of the world — the United States, Great Britain, South Africa, Germany."

About 300 cases have been listed in the United States and 1,200 in Britain, he said.

Selikoff said that among cases in Britain, few of the victims had been asbestos workers but had been employed in the same yards in which a relatively small number of other men had been working with asbestos.

"Such cases already are being seen in our country," he said. "In the past year, a number of such World War II mesotheliomas have been brought to our attention; the last five cases had worked in East or West Coast shipyards as an electrician, a tinsmith, an engineer, a steamfitter and a welder.

"Another, a young man of 30, died of pleural (lung) mesothelioma. Although he had never worked in a shipyard, much asbestos was found in his lung. He had been born in 1940, two blocks from the Brooklyn Navy Yard."

Junior High, Bond Issue Helped

S-C Explores New Horizons With Expanded Room, New Hours

By KEITH A. OWEN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A great number of changes and notable improvements can be seen at Smith-Cotton high school this year as a direct result of the new junior high school and the passage of the increased school levy.

Also providing a change of scenery is an innovation in class scheduling two days a week.

A big difference pointed out by almost every teacher interviewed is the smaller class size made possible by channeling between 425 and 450 eighth grade students to the junior high school, while faculty size was stable.

Bob Edmondson, in his 22nd year on the faculty, said, "The whole school seems to be different" as a result of the smaller classes. He explained there is actually a better learning atmosphere with fewer students in classes.

Principal Earl Finley said the school's faculty size is nearly the same as last year, about 70, while the student body is down to about 1,650. He noted that in such classes as language arts and history where class size might have ranged as high as 40 in recent years, are near the 30-student level this year.

Finley noted the absence of the eighth grade has created a more mature school atmosphere. He also credited the expansion of curriculum and the addition of a number of vocational and technical classes as reasons for the "more mature and business-like outlook" on the part of students.

Among the additions to the academic curriculum are courses such as animal science, music theory and harmony, child care and development, advanced biology, creative writing, graphic arts, the short story as an art form, and advanced reading skills.

Vo-tech field opening

Vo-tech courses available to students this year are greatly enhanced by the offerings of the area vocational school facilities at Marshall and Warrensburg.

Welding, auto body and fender repair, refrigeration and air conditioning, electronics, and auto mechanics are luring 48 S-C students to the area schools this year.

However, a student doesn't have to ride a bus to another town to enjoy the benefits of the expanded vo-tech curriculum with courses such as small engine repair, building trades and basic electricity included at the Smith-Cotton plant.

Also, a program of distributive education abandoned eight years ago has been revived. The associated class teaches students about working conditions, how to advance on a job, how to do a better job and what employers expect of their employes. The practical application is realized when students actually work part of the day in positions which the school often helps them to acquire. Finley revealed that about 85 young people, mostly seniors, are involved in the program this year.

The building trades course is one of the highlights of the new additions to S-C vocational education. Twenty-two students working in two shifts are building a house in Southwest Village which will eventually be sold by the system in order to further fund the program. With only a few weeks of school elapsed, the foundation is already completed and work is underway on the subfloor.

Variable schedule new

The variable schedule technique being employed this year is probably the most liberal example of changes at the high school.

Students maintain a traditional six-class day on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday but on Wednesday and Friday, there are only three actual classes, each of which is 90 minutes long.

The new variable time schedule used on Wednesdays and Fridays is as follows: 8:15 to 8:35, home room period; 8:40 to 10:15, first class; 10:20 to 11:55, second class; noon to 2:45, third class (including a 35-minute lunch break); and 2:05 to 2:45, individual study period.

Also included in the variable schedule is a 40-minute independent study period and a 20-minute home room session.

Students attend three of their classes on Wednesday and the other three on Friday. The choice of subject to which a student's independent study time is devoted is left up to him. In fact, a student has the option of not working in a particular field and can elect a regular study hall.

In order for the administration to be able to keep records of a student's whereabouts as well as which subjects are in demand, each Tuesday students must secure a registration slip from the teacher in charge of the subject matter he wishes to study on Wednesday. The same method is used on Thursday for Friday's independent study time.

The short home room periods at the beginning of the day on Wednesday and Friday allow teachers to take care of business matters which used to take up regular class time, thereby providing another advantage over the traditional system.

Finley explained that the introduction of the independent study time places a new responsibility on the student. He noted that a few students have difficulty in selecting educationally beneficial activity, but added that the majority of the students stand to benefit greatly from the program.

"I'm really very happy with the way things have gone so far," he said Wednesday.

The principal also noted the longer classes involve the use of new teaching techniques. He explained that the variable schedule days require a teacher to prepare a little differently.

After a little probing, Finley also admitted the variable schedule days present more complicated duties for the administration.

Teachers like it

Every teacher interviewed gave a favorable report on the new scheduling technique.

Ron Leedy, in only his second year at S-C, said quite simply, "I like it." He explained that the longer classes involve more preparation but said "you get a lot more done." Leedy noted classroom experimentation in his subject of psychology is much more easily accomplished and added that audio-visual equipment can be better used.

Mrs. Ruby Schondelmeyer, who teaches typing and business courses, said independent study time allows students the opportunity to work on trouble areas in typewriting. About the new variable schedule and the smaller class sizes, she commented "We have more time to spend with the students and we can offer them more...I think it's improved quite a bit."

Mrs. Jean Routszong said the reduced class sizes help students feel less like numbers. She also noted teachers have a chance now to use more progressive teaching techniques and to give more individual attention.

Edmondson noted that his biggest class this year is about 26 while he was teaching around 40 students in his largest class last year. He explained that the smaller size is much more donducive to his particular field of practical arithmetic.

Edmondson also commented on the school situation as a whole. "To me, there is less confusion than ever before."

Robert Cummings, head of the music department, said the variable schedule is allowing much more practice time during school, adding that he has actually had to turn down requests for the music room on independent study periods due to a lack of space.

Cummings also teaches the new music theory and harmony course. He said the course has been badly needed by those going on in the field of music in college.

The band and orchestra leader noted that by the end of the year students will be able to write their own musical arrangements. Some of the things taught in the class are construction of scales, measurement of intervals and triad harmony.

Cummings also said a change in the music program was initiated last year when try-outs for marching band were held. He explained that this year the school has a 97-piece varsity band as well as a 51 piece cadet band. Work with the school stage band during the regular school day has also been greatly enhanced by the variable schedule, Cummings said. In the past, the two marching bands have been divided on the basis of class rank rather than musical ability, while the stage band rehearsals required evening time spots.

Industrial arts benefits

Emerson Matthews, one of the most experienced and highly-respected industrial arts teachers in the state, said his department is "definitely in better shape...we are able to offer a better course of study to the boys."

"We think it's really beneficial to our department," Matthews commented about the variable schedule program. Matthews also noted that the smaller class sizes enable industrial arts instructors to devote more time to students on an individual basis as well as making the use of power tools easier to supervise.

James Braden, who teaches drafting, industrial arts and distributive education, said that upperclassmen seem "really appreciative" of smaller classes. He said they tend to realize their classes would be much larger if the 65-cent levy increase to operate the junior high had not passed in May.

Braden also commented on the building trades class, noting that there seems to be a shortage of skilled people who are young. He added that "with the construction that is going on in Sedalia" students in the building trades class should be greatly helped when seeking jobs after graduation.

Fred Lovercamp, who has taught general science and biology for more than 10 years, talked about his new animal science class.

He said the class only has 15 students this year but prospects are good for enlargement. Lovercamp explained that every student will have a project, raising some type of animal, and will be required to keep records including checking on profits, losses and daily upkeep.

Lovercamp, who also operates a fairly large swine farm, said the class involves the use of materials provided by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture as well as a vocational agriculture text. He noted that even students who live in town are enrolled in the course and are planning projects.

About the variable class schedule, Lovercamp said that "innovations are what we need...the student has to become involved." He also noted the educational atmosphere is greatly improved this year and added that science laboratories have benefited greatly from the variable schedule program.

Audio-visual improvement

Mrs. Jane Johnson, who teaches language arts, said teachers can now make better use of audio-visual facilities than ever before. She explained that a room is now designated for such things as showing films and for the storage of equipment. She added that additional room this year allows the opportunity to set up permanent facilities in other special fields.

Also, the variable schedule allows teachers to use films which were once too long, Mrs. Johnson noted. She said teachers have "greater leeway on most subject material. I think it's going to work out really great," she added.

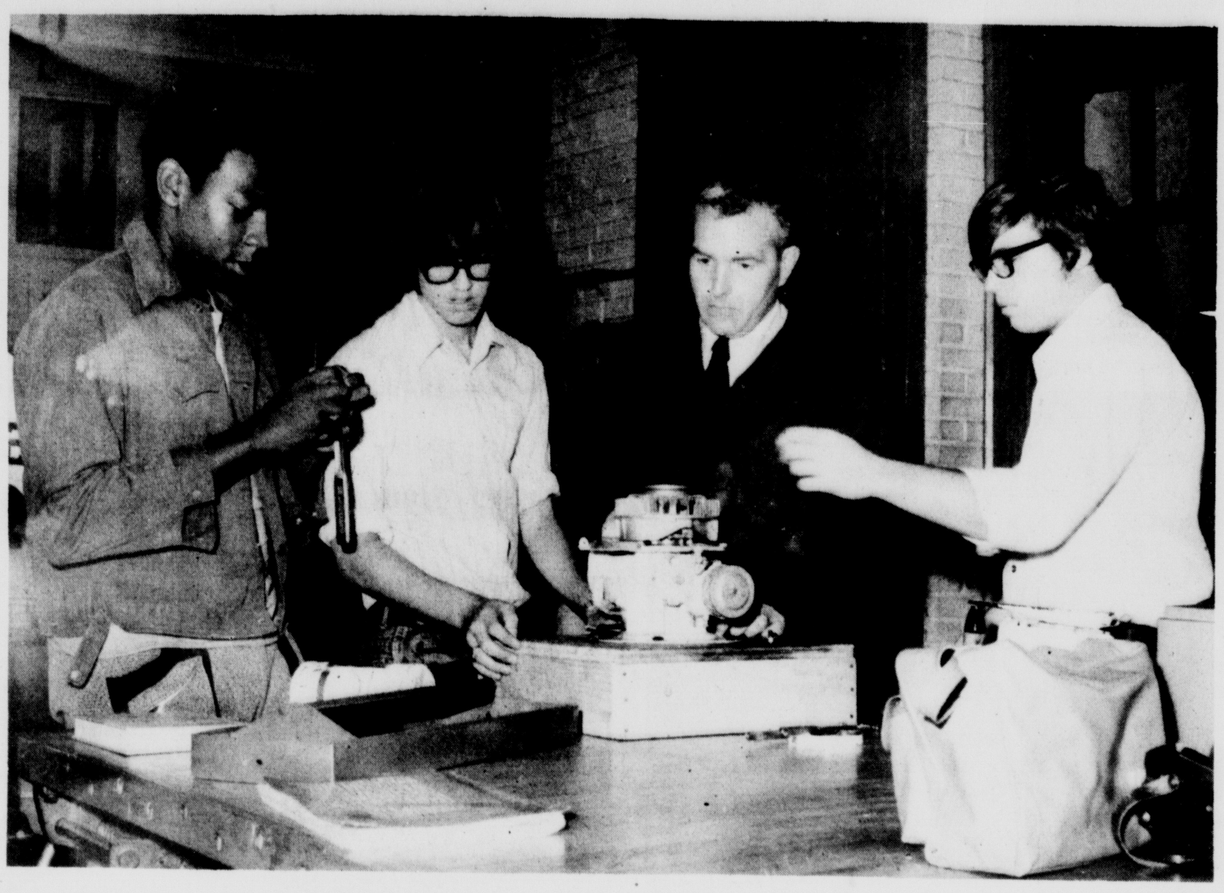
Along with the improvements due to smaller classes and new time schedules, a large benefit has been gained by the opportunity to once again combine all resource materials in one high school library.

Mrs. P. A. Sillers and Miss Betty Grey are now able to concentrate their efforts in a single library to better serve both teachers and students. Formerly, facilities were divided at Smith-Cotton into the junior high and senior high libraries.

Mrs. Sillers revealed the library has become more of a media center rather than being so "book oriented." She said the library now has cassette tape players, records, film strips, and more newspapers and magazines. Also, the school is in the process of setting up a microfilm collection, she said.

Finley expressed optimism about the new programs and attributed the high probability of success to a "really fine staff." He noted the school faculty includes a good blend of veterans with many years of experience along with younger teachers.

Other new features at S-C this year include carpet in the library and on the auditorium runways. Finley also noted that a majority of both students and teachers seem to like the 8:15 a.m. starting time, a half hour earlier than in the past.



Small Engine Instruction

Repairing a lawn mower engine as part of the practical application of the new small engine repair course at Smith-Cotton this year are left to right, students Jack Campbell, 205 West Johnson; Bob Hartley, 2100 South Vermont, and Tom Morris, 412 West 21st, as instructor Paul Joquel, second from right looks on. These three are among the 56 S-C students taking the course which was made possible with money supplied by the passage of the 65-cent May school tax levy.

Miss Terri Ann Golladay Becomes Mrs. McDonald

(Democrat-Capital Service)

KNOB NOSTER — Miss Terri Ann Golladay, daughter of Mrs. Ruth DeWitt, Knob Noster, became the bride of Johnny Lynn McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McDonald, Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 16 at the First Christian Church here.

The Rev. Marvin Platt officiated at the double ring ceremony before an altar with lighted tapers on each side in seven-branch candelabra, entwined with green and yellow ribbon, and with matching standing baskets of pink gladioli, raspberry star flowers and pink pom pon mums. A white unity candle in the center of a three-branch candelabra was lighted by the bride and groom following their vows.

Miss Margaret Lane, organist, played a prelude of nuptial selections and the wedding marches.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Gary E. Golladay, wore an A-line gown of imported organza and Venice lace, which extended into a chapel train. The gown was styled with a high neckline and camelot sleeves and a lace panel down the front. Her waist length veil of illusion was attached to a headpiece of pearls and sequins and she carried a triangular cascade of white bridal roses.

Miss Debbie Johnson was maid of honor and Miss Lori Suttles was the bridesmaid. They wore identical floor length gowns with high waists of raspberry crushed velvet and pink crepe skirt, and trimmed with raspberry velvet on the sleeves and waist. They carried Chantilly bouquets of pink pixies and raspberry star flowers with pink streamers.

Leo Suttles was the best man and Dana Golladay, brother of the bride, was the groomsman. Tim and Randy Golladay, brothers of the bride, served as ushers and candlelighters.

Miss Linda Mapes attended the guest book and Miss Wanda Smith was in charge of the gift table.

The bride presented her mother with a long stemmed yellow rose and the groom's mother with a long stemmed red rose as she was being escorted to the altar.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the NCO Club at Whiteman AFB. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over pink accented with pink ribbons, and with a three branch candelabra on each side of the wedding cake. The wedding cake carried out the bride's chosen colors of pink and raspberry roses with mint green leaves. The couple cut the four-tiered cake toasting their troth by drinking together from a silver

The couple will reside in Atlanta, Ga., where the groom is assistant manager of the Little Giant Chain Store.

Rachel Ann Shipps and Robert Leland Vaughan Are United in Marriage

Miss Rachel Ann Shipps and Robert Leland Vaughan were united in marriage Sept. 16 by the Rev. Larry Shores at New Bethel Methodist Church.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shipps, Route 1, the bride wore a floor length gown of white satin with a bodice that featured a scalloped neckline and full bishop sleeves, both accented with Venice lace and pearls. A matching mantilla and veil completed her look and she carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses and yellow pompon mums.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Artie Vaughan and the late Aubrey W. Vaughan, Tuscumbia.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Erney Durrill, sister of the bride, and James Vaughan, brother of the groom, was best man.

Miss Rhonda Kae Shipps, niece of the bride, was the flower girl and ringbearer was Marty Wayne Petree, nephew of the bride.

Steele-Gearheart Married

Cumberland Presbyterian Church was the scene of the exchange of wedding vows between Miss Rebecca Jane Steele, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John Steele, Route 2, and Virgil Lee Gearheart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil M. Gearheart, Route 3, Sept. 16.

The Rev. Steele, father of the bride, performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with two large bouquets of pink and white carnations with two brass candelabra accented with pink bows.

Mrs. Floyd Fulton, organist, provided traditional wedding selections and accompanied Jerry Steele, brother of the bride, in vocal numbers.

Given in marriage by her brother, David Steele, the bride wore a satapeau empire waisted gown with bishop sleeves and a high neckline. The gown was accented with scalloped French chantilly lace and was highlighted by her floor length matching veil. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations with white fuji mums.

Maid of honor, Miss Joyce Anderson, wore a white floor length gown of dotted swiss with puffed sleeves that had pink flower accents throughout. The fitted bodice was accented by a deep satin ribbon which formed a bow and streamed down the skirt.

Mrs. Robert Gearheart, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid while Miss Sandra Hazelrigg served as junior bridesmaid. Both wore gowns identical to the maid of honor except in pink and all carried nosegays of pink and white carnations.

Best man was Dennis Spellmeyer and groomsman was Robert Gearheart, brother of the groom. Steve Hazelrigg was the junior groomsman.

Serving as flower girl and ringbearer were Beverly Spellmeyer and Tommy Bakert, niece and nephew of the groom. Danny Hazelrigg, nephew of the bride, was candlelighter while Tommey Bakert and Charles Steele, brother of the bride, served as ushers.

A reception followed at the church where a three tiered cake decorated with pink and white roses was flanked by two silver candleholders containing pink tapers and ringed with white baby roses.

Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. Tony Bakert, Mrs. Dennis Spellmeyer and Miss Glenda Veach, sisters of the groom.

Presiding at the guestbook was Miss Kathryn Payne and Mrs. Stanley Hazelrigg, sister of the bride, attended the gift table.

Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside at 3203 South Washington. The bride is employed at Campbell Nursing Home and the groom works for Permaneer Corporation.

Carter-Brockman Married Friday

(Democrat-Capital Service)

GREEN RIDGE — Green Ridge Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony Friday evening of Miss Karen Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Carter, Green Ridge, and Wesley Brockman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hollenbeck, Green Ridge. The Rev. Kenneth Roller, former pastor of the church, officiated at the ceremony.

The bride wore a white floor length dress of satapeau as she was given in marriage by her father. The high ruffled neckline was enhanced by Venice lace that extended to the empire .wiast and the A-line skirt was edged with a wide ruffle that swept into a chapel train. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was gathered to a matching headpiece.

The bride carried a cascade of bridal pink and white roses with lavender baby's breath.

The bride's twin sister, Miss Sharon Carter served as maid of honor. She wore a floor length dress of lavender crepe trimmed with lace and she carried a nosegay of white sweetheart roses and lavender and white pompon mums.

The best man was Richard Rupe and ushers were Joe Campbell and James Uptergrove.

Candlelighters were Miss Nicki Carter, sister of the bride, and Steve Brockman, brother of the groom. Miss Sherri Colyne, cousin of the groom, served as flower girl and Doug Wallace was ringbearer.

Miss Cheryl Gorrell, organist, and Mrs. Russell May, guitarist, provided the music for the ceremony.

The altar candelabra were decorated with greenery and lavender ribbons. Split-leaf philodendron arranged in the front of the church created a natural atmosphere for the ceremony.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church. A lace and lavender cloth covered the table where the three-tiered wedding cake was cut.

Mrs. James Dirck, Miss Denise Hampton and Miss Alice Maltbarger served at the bride's table.

The bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Mike Carter, was in charge of the guest book.

The gift table was attended by Miss Leslie Harvey, Miss Alice Pollard and Miss Darice Crawford.

For traveling on a honeymoon to the South, the bride chose a sky blue A-line dress with white lace bib and a white rose corsage.

The couple will reside on a farm near Green Ridge. The bride will work as a hair dresser at Flossie's Beauty Salon here and the groom is a sophomore at State Fair Community College.

The evening before the ceremony a rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the groom at Flat Creek Inn.

Shapes Up Show and Loves Theater

BOSTON (AP) — Being quick and clever helps get a role in "Godspell," says Nina Faso, who should know, since she is director of productions of the musical in Boston, Washington, Los Angeles and Paris, France.

"Basically we look for people who are quick, clever, can sing, dance, pantomine well and look well, not just cute...," Miss Faso said. "America is unique in finding young actors with those attributes."

Casting the Paris production took a long time, she elaborated, because "French actors don't have a musical comedy background." Their stage background is in straight drama or opera.

The Paris production is in French, and Miss Faso, who speaks French and Italian in addition to English, spent two months there adapting the show with a bilingual translator.

In between such new productions, Miss Faso, who is 23, returns to the ones she opened earlier to see how they are going.

The idea is to "make sure the show hasn't gotten out of shape," she said. Her usual method is to "drop in on a performance and call a rehearsal for the next day," at which she talks to the staff. "Usually I try to stay for three performances," she said.

Another one apt to drop in on a performance is the creator of the show and the director of the original production in New York, John-Michael Tebelak.

As for differences in th original Tebelak-directed show and in productions she directed, Miss Faso said, "The concept of directing in New York (Tebelak's) is right."

She said, "You don't change the concept. It is there for all time."

Where the productions differ is in the different actors, she pointed out.

"So much of the show is improvisation, that productions or staging to an extent depend on who is selected for the cast."

Miss Faso met Tebelak while both were students at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh. Tebelak began working on "Godspell" as a master's thesis at the university.

She acted in his shows at a summer repertory camp in Ohio, and after graduating with honors, she worked with a satiricalimprovisational group in San Francisco, and three months bexore the May, 1971, opening of "Godspell" in New York, she joined Tebelak there to help with the original production.

"I stayed with 'Godspell" because I love the show," she said, adding that she also likes the producers, and "I can't complain about the money."

She enjoys acting, and said she would like to start producing some day, too.

"I like anything in the theater," she said. "If a production excites me, I'll paint scenery, I'll do anything."

Sorority Sends Boys a Magazine

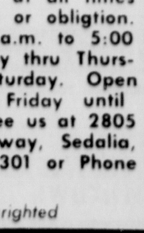
LOOKING INTO WINDOWS
by Deanie Long



What is the function of a window? To separate indoors from outdoors? To bring air and light into the home? These, of course, are important functions, but today's windows also play a major role in the interior styling of a home.

The right window treatment can set the mood of an entire room. It can serve as a room's focal point or dictate its color scheme. Drab, unexciting rooms can suddenly become bright, cheerful settings for the gathering of family and friends. With the proper curtains and draperies you can make small windows look larger, skinny windows seem wider, and odd shaped windows appear well formed. Your window treatment can also block out an unsightly view or accentuate a lovely one. You can actually work home decorating miracles by creating the right treatment for your windows.

In the next few columns we'll be discussing various curtain and drapery treatments for all types of windows. In the meantime, if you're decorating a new home or designing a new look for your present home you're sure to like the large selection of curtain and drapery window treatments at HOBSON'S. We are at your service at all times without cost or obligtion. Open 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Tuesday thru Thursday & Saturday. It Migrates

Delicate Monarch Sturdy Surprise

Probably everyone is familiar with the migratory habits of birds each autumn. Perhaps many Pettis Countians have cast a curious upward glance at a silver "V" of a southbound geese, or disturbed a field filled with blackbirds gathering for a southern flight.

But probably not as many are familiar with the migrating habits of the beautiful, delicate, yet durable Monarch butterfly.

Known to entomologists as the Danaus plexippus, of the order Lepidoptera, suborder Rhopalocera, the Monarch (which has a large name for a small creature) can be found in any part of the country where milkweed grows.

Researchers have found that the adult monarch, as pictured here after being discovered in abundance in a yard in Sedalia this week, thrives during most of the summer. The reddish brown wings usually span between three and four inches, and are veined and bordered in black.

It has been reported that thousands of monarchs gather at some favorite spot just before cold weather when migratory instincts take over. The migrating flock, however, is only the last mature generation of several each year before the cold weather sets in. Perhaps the butterflies in these pictures, some of more than 100 found in a Sedalia yard, were part of that last generation, the one destined to an epic migration, perhaps as far south as the Gulf of Mexico.

A native North American insect, the Monarch can migrate from Ontario, Canada, to Florida in about three weeks, according to research. At the end of the journey, the butterflies spend the cold months in a covered bush, perhaps to be used by succeeding generations in future winters.

Just as for other migrating creatures, spring signals the trip north to breed on "home ground." Now a dusty brown, the female has stopped along the way to lay eggs on young milkweed plants using the underneath of the plant's leaves as shelter for the yet unborn offspring, which will fly north when nature prepares them for the trip.

A caterpillar eventually hatches from the egg and that unique transformation called metamorphosis begins. From caterpillar to another brilliant blaze of winged symmetry, the traveling cycle repeats itself.

An amazingly sturdy creation, the Monarch has recorded migrations covering a 2,000 mile roundtrip, often being clocked at 25 miles an hour, even against headwinds. Oceans have not hindered the spread of this surprising insect. The Continental native thrives in Hawaii.

And their presence was noted in Sedalia this week as they gathered to depart for an unknown southern home.

Banquet Honors Drivers

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP) — A Joplin bus driver and a truck driver who saved persons from a fire and an auto accident were honored Friday night at the closing banquet of the Missouri Bus and Truck Association's annual convention at the Lake of the Ozarks.

Walter C. Keller of Joplin, a bus driver for Jerferson Lines, was named Missouri's bus driver of the year, while Earl Bouldin of Cape Girardeau, an intercity truck driver for Campbell 66 Express, with headquarters in Springfield, was named truck driver of the year.

Keller, 59, started driving buses in 1931 and has covered 2.9 million miles without an accident.

Bouldin, 51, has driven more than 3 million miles over the past 35 years.

In 1941, driving through Fulton, Ky., he saw flames coming from a grocery store and apartment. Unable to wake the residents, he kicked in the door and cut open sacks of flour which he used to hold the fire in check until firemen arrived.

In 1955 he came upon a three-car wreck on Route 3 between Belleville, Ill., and St. Louis. Three persons were killed, but a woman and her baby were alive and pinned under one of the burning cars. After using his fire extinguisher, he jacked up the car and rescued the woman and child.

Continued Need For Service Told

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rotary International members must continue to serve local communities and others less fortunate than themselves, the organization's president said here Friday.

Roy Hickman of Birmingham, Ala., spoke to a gathering of five Rotary chapters from eastern Missouri and southern Illinois.

"When you find a project that serves someone less fortunate than yourself the rewards are tremendous," he said.

Rotary International has more than 731,000 members in 15,000 clubs around the world.

Ann Landers

Mom Ties up Line In This Household

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you ran a letter in your column from a woman who said her teen-ager tied up the phone from 3:00 until 10:00 p.m. and she was furious about it.

I'm a 15-year-old girl whose MOTHER is on the phone constantly. Once I got sick in school and the secretary tried to call my mother to ask her to come and get me. She dialed for 40 minutes and couldn't get through because the line was busy. Finally she decided to drive me home in her own car.

When my boyfriend calls for an hour straight and is unable to get through, he gets ticked off. He can't understand how anybody can gab that long. Frankly, neither can I. Several of my girl friends have tried to reach me for an impromptu party and I've missed out because our line was busy and they gave up.

So please, Ann, don't make it look like teen-agers are the only ones who have "black-cord fever." Some of the grownups are just as bad, or worse — Hot Line U.S.A.

Dear Hot Line U.S.A.: In families such as yours, where the telephone is a major source of entertainment, a second line is well worth the money. It is unfair for one member of the family, either teen-ager or adult, to tie up the only phone in the house for an hour at a time.

Dear Ann Landers: I pray that you will print my letter for every parent and animal lover in the world.

I am sick to death of the kids I see here in California. I'm talking about 12- and 13-year-olds who are turned loose with B.B. guns. I have a horse that I keep in the country in Fairfield. There are many horses out here, as well as cows, dogs, and cats. Yesterday I came out to feed my pets. My favorite kitten failed to show up as usual so I went looking for her. Ann, I thought my heart would break. I found that dear little ball of fur crawling out from under the barn with two B.B. holes in her leg. She was in pain and struggled desperately to get to me. It was apparent that someone had shot her for kicks.

I have sons of my own. I would no sooner turn my boys loose with a B.B. gun than I could cut off my right arm. What is the matter with parents that they buy such "toys" for their children? And why don't they teach their youngsters to respect, if not to love, all living things?

There is a strange emptiness in people who have no feeling for God's creatures. Children who take delight in seeing animals suffer are potential criminals. They have seeds of destruction that could lead them to do hideous things. Please, Ann — say something. — California Reader

Dear Reader: What can I say? You have said it all — and very eloquently. I agree, the whole gun scene in our country is a nightmare. After that outrageous attempt on Governor Wallace's life you'd have thought there would be an immediate demand for stricter gun laws — but so far, nothing. What more must happen before we wake up?

———

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers' guide to "Necking And Petting — What Are The Limits?" Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

President earns his second term

With the 1972 presidential election little more than a month away, The Democrat-Capital endorses President Richard M. Nixon for another four-year term in office.

In contrast to other election years, the choice in 1972 strikes us as clear-cut. Compared to his Democratic challenger, Sen. George McGovern, we feel that the President presents the voter with the better credentials for the office.

President Nixon has delivered. In the field of foreign affairs, Mr. Nixon has made bold overtures to the Soviet Union and the China, which have notably reduced tensions between the United States and these powers.

Through the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, the President has achieved the first agreement in the history of the world to limit nuclear weapons of war. Although the Soviet-American pact is a small beginning toward reducing the threat of thermonuclear war, it IS a beginning. With four more years in office, the President will have the opportunity to build on this start, and move toward other such agreements.

America's economic problems, perhaps the thorniest problem the President inherited from his predecessor, have been greatly improved under Mr. Nixon's Phase I and Phase II economic programs. The rate of inflation has been halved in the past year, and there is a noticeable feeling of economic optimism in the nation as the recession continues to taper off.

In these and other areas, President Nixon has exhibited a remarkable growth in office, and an increasing confidence in carrying out the overwhelming duties of the Chief Executive.

We are not, however, unmindful of some of the failures of the Nixon Administration: a periodic tendency to put politics above principle; a chuminess with big business that speaks of favoritism, if not finagling; the lingering questions about the Watergate incident, ITT, the wheat sale to Russia.

But in balance, Mr. Nixon has given the nation more pluses than minuses. And we have never known of a President yet who pleased all of the people all of the time.

We have preferred to stress Mr. Nixon's record, rather than the shortcomings of his opponent, Senator McGovern. But we would be remiss if we did not express our grave misgivings about Senator McGovern's reckless proposals in just two broad areas: national defense and social welfare.

In the first area, McGovern would slash the defense budget by more than $30 billion, thereby greatly constricting the nation's offensive and defensive capabilities. Considering the general state of the world today, and the unprecedented military potential shown by the Soviet Union, such a deliberate reduction to second-rate power status would gravely imperil the nation's security.

As for the area of social concerns — welfare, health, housing, etc. — Senator McGovern's prescriptions, basically, are for a return to Big Government, but to such an extent that a McGovern administration would usher in an era of transitional socialism, putting the United States on a path that the majority of the American people are not willing to go down.

We think it is no mystery that Mr. McGovern's candidacy has failed to catch on with the great broad section of the American electorate. It is because his program is too radical, too extreme and represents too much of a break with the traditions of this nation.

The United States would be immeasurably better off in the hands of Richard M. Nixon for another four years.

Jimmy the Greek stays with Nixon

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Our favorite political pollster, Jimmy the Greek Snyder, says George McGovern is moving up on President Nixon but has little chance of overtaking him by November 7.

As the nation's No. 1 oddsmaker, therefore, Jimmy rates the President a 15-to-1 favorite over McGovern. In California, Illinois, New York and Ohio — the key states McGovern must win to score an upset — Jimmy finds the President a 3-to-1 favorite.

Only in the District of Columbia does Jimmy give McGovern the edge. But the Democratic candidate has a chance, in Jimmy's book, of winning Massachusetts, Minnesota, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Jimmy's odds are based on elaborate, if unique, polling of politicians, political writers and key states. He also rates the two candidates by issues, image and support. Here are his calculations:

Issues — Foreign affairs, 10-2 in Nixon's favor; business, 10-2; military, 7-1; busing, 7-3; law and order, 9-7; economy, 7-6; welfare, 7-7; farm subsidies, 8-10; federal spending, 7-7; and revenue sharing, 3-3.

Image — Recognition, 10-8, in Nixon's favor; politician, 9-4; credibility, 7-3; charisma, 7-5; intelligence, 7-4; and religion, 9-8.

Support — Foreign support, 10-1 in Nixon's favor; financial, 8-2½; Republican, 10-½; big business, 10-2; Jewish-Americans, 7-3; independents, 6-3; women, 6-4; labor, 6-4; youth, 5-5; Democrats, 4-6; and minorities, 3-6.

With a trumpet blast of self-congratulation, the Nixon administration recently announced a "landmark" accord with American Telephone and Telegraph to promote thousands of women, blacks and chicanos.

General Services Administrator Arthur Sampson, the federal housekeeper, declared triumphantly that "AT&T's affirmative action ... follows to the letter President Nixon's directives."

We have now learned that the happy accord not only falls short of the President's directives but was sternly rejected earlier by GSA's own civil rights office.

Last July, GSA's acting civil rights director, John Brosnahan, turned down Ma Bell's antidiscrimination plan. He wrote sharply to AT&T's equal employment head, D. M. Davis: "We have several areas of disagreement with the model you have proposed."

Brosnahan called AT&T's transfer plan "unacceptable" and rejected a 3 per cent goal for women in entry level jobs. "As we have stated many times," he wrote, "entry level jobs should have a goal of 38 per cent for women." He also found "all affirmative action plans submitted to GSA (by AT&T) provisionally unacceptable."

AT&T finally moved the women's goal up to 10 per cent, still far from the 38 per cent sought by GSA's civil rights office. But the telephone company could not be budged any further.

Nevertheless, in vies of the political need to appease both women and the minorities, the Nixon Administration decided to ignore both its guidelines and its experts. On September 20, Sampson announced GSA had secured "one of the farthest reaching equal employment opportunity programs in American business."

Footnote: We asked GSA's civil rights director, E. E. Mitchell, why he let the agreement go through. He acknowledged there had been "differences of opinion at the highest levels in GSA" but said he had pounded out the best possible accord with AT&T. A spokesman for AT&T said the accord was reached after eight months of negotiations. "We feel it's a very progressive agreement," he said. "We've opened up a channel for every qualified employe to advance."

The enthusiasm at the Democratic convention for the national lettuce boycott hasn't impressed the Democrats who run the House restaurants. Nonunion western iceberg lettuce is still served in the House dining rooms. House Administration Chairman Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who is in charge of the restaurants, tells us food purchases are determined by cost, not politics. "There's no law that says we have to comply with the boycott," he grumped.

A conservative view

McGovern rhetoric not so calm now

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Staffers over at the Republican National Committee, hard at work in their boiler room, have beaten me to a column I had been meaning to write. With deference to these industrious fuglemen, permit me to go at it anyhow. The theme is the rhetoric of George McGovern.

Kilpatrick

Back in the spring, before the senator won his party's nomination, members of the press were as one in describing the gentleman's demeanor. He was "mild-mannered" and "soft-spoken." He "seldom raises his voice." He comes on, we wrote, "like a professor of political science addressing a group of graduate students." He had all the Boy Scout virtues; he was courteous, kind, reasoned, temperate, and all the rest.

As the RNC reminds us in its press release last week, the senator said on May 17, in reference to his campaign plans: "I won't make any changes except to redouble my efforts to avoid inflammatory rhetoric. I've tried to be very restrained in what I say and to have a calming, reassuring effect, rather than to incite a crowd."

Well, sir, that was the old McGovern. We have a new McGovern now. It is a curious thing. He and Vice President Agnew are passing like ships in the night. The vice president now yawns on like Sominex. He is Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. But the old professor, bless him, has suddenly turned linebacker mean. He is charged up with vitamins A, B, C and two quarts of Geritol. He has a tiger in his tank. It is simply amazing.

The other day in Columbus, Ohio, for example, the senator sounded off on "nutty" public opinion polls and "lousy" newspaper columnists. Lousy! Us? That wasn't all. According to the A.P. account, "he described some conservative newspaper columnists, whom he wouldn't name, as lousy, bitter, paranoid, predictable, despicable, obnoxious propagandists who are consistently wrong and who write nothing good about any candidate more liberal than Genghis Khan."

Now, that is gold medal stuff. It is four laps in front of "a tiny and closed fraternity of privileged men, elected by no one," which is what the vice president once said of the network commentators.

On Sept. 25, in Tacoma, Senator McGovern had a few things of his own to say about the wretches who run TV. He was sore at the television networks for giving President Nixon's "lackeys" as much publicity as they were giving his own campaign. "It galls me," said the senator, to see some "second-rate bureaucrat" getting equal time on the evening news.

"I don't think they ought to get a thing," said Senator McGovern.

Goodness gracious! Heaves to Betsy! Our spring lamb has turned into mutton. The gentleman who promised in May to be "very restrained in what I say" three times has linked Nixon to Hitler. He is tossing this word "barbarism" around as if he had just made it up. The senator describes the President as behaving "like a reformed drunk for visiting Moscow and Peking after a career as an anti-Communist."

The Democratic nominee, tossing moderation to the winds, sees lunacy at every hand. The President, he says, is "power mad." In Seattle on Sept. 6, he made a psychiatric diagnosis: "Any laboring man or woman who supports Richard Nixon ought to have his head examined." And any young person who supports the President "is too confused to know which end is up."

Well! I raise not the slightest murmur of objection. It was a bit unkind of the senator to except me and Bill Buckley from his "lousy" list: I myself am despicable at least three days a week, and Mr. Buckley is obnoxious every afternoon from 2 to 5. But the hot blast of Senator McGovern's rhetoric can be cheerfully borne. If you can't stand the heat, said Mr. Truman, stay out of the kitchen.

But one plaintive question may be asked: Suppose, to be supposing, that it was not George McGovern saying these things? Suppose it were Spiro Agnew instead. At CBS, five vice presidents would have fallen to the floor in fainting fits. The Times and the Post would have been on the hapless fellow like two collies on a groundhog. Who says there ain't no double standard?

c. 1972, Washington Star Syndicate Inc.

My uninvited guest

A wasp in the kitchen I saw one night
When I went in and turned on the light,
There on the red towel he moved a bit
Then cuddled up in a fold of it,
I figured the wasp had just gone to bed
And remembered what my grandmother had said:
"Leave the wasp alone, whatever you do
"If you don't bother it, it won't bother you."
Well, I was willing to give it a test
I had no intentions of disturbing its rest,
So I wrote a note to myself to say
"From that red towel—just stay away."
In the living room I sat in a chair
And I found, too, I had company in there
A cricket began to serenade
He got out his fiddle and played and played,
I got up and across the room did he shoot
All dressed up in his black satin suit,
I tried to catch him but over the floor
He hopped and went under the closet door,
And that night I heard him sing and play
He serenaded all the next day,
I knew exactly what kind of a bug
He was, he'd like to chew on my rug,
But he was well hidden behind boxes and things—
A cricket that eats rugs— a wasp that sings,
What delightful guests I had in my house
But I was just thankful there wasn't a mouse,
The wasp sought water, then couldn't get out,
The cricket seems to be no place about,
So I have no guests in my house today,
No little guests, I'm happy to say.

George is held on grid

WASHINGTON — "Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. This is Howard Lowsell and we're at halftime at Presidential Election Stadium where we are witnessing one of the duller political football games ever played before a nationwide TV audience.

Buchwald

"The McGovern team is behind by 28 points in the polls and the Nixon team seems to be running at will. This is particularly interesting because Nixon has not even been in the ball game. He's been sitting on the bench and sending in plays to his assistants. This has enraged the McGovern team who claim they came to play Nixon and not his flunkies. But Nixon has said it is unprofessional for someone in his position to go out on the field and mix it up with the McGovern rabble.

"In the first quarter the McGovern team got off to a bad start when McGovern's star running back, Tom Eagleton, fumbled the ball. McGovern backed Eagleton in the fumble, but a few minutes later substituted Sarge Shriver in the backfield and sent Eagleton to the locker room.

"This caused great consternation on the team and they were penalized one month for unsportsmanlike credibility.

"Another thing that caused the McGovern team to lose yardage was that although McGovern is the quarterback, everyone on the team was calling a different play.

"When McGovern would call for a pass, Shriver would run with the ball. When McGovern signaled for a punt several of his linemen went over his head and tried an end run. It took almost the entire first half for McGovern to persuade the fans he was calling the signals, and many people still are not convinced.

"The McGovern team was selected to play in the White House Bowl because of their new brand of football. But as we have seen during the first half, they are playing the same style of football as previous teams without, I might add, much success.

"There has been a great deal of recrimination about this contest. The McGovern team claims the Nixon team bugged the McGovern locker room and stole the McGovern game plan.

"Nixon had one of his assistant coaches look into these charges in what he called the 'most thorough investigation in football history.' The assistant coach concluded no one on the Nixon team had anything to do with the bugging of the locker room and was appalled that the McGovern team would make an issue of it.

"The McGovern team also has claimed that one of the reasons it hasn't played well is the lack of money. Their helmets are dented, their shoulder pads are torn and a few of the players have no shoes. They maintain every time the Nixon team calls a timeout, the water boy, Maurice Stans, brings another bucket of money onto the field.

"Money does seem to be a problem in this game, but that's only part of it. Let's face it, folks, George McGovern is no Joe Namath. His plays have been unimaginative, his ball handling suspect and as far as the fans are concerned his passes have not been on target.

"The Nixon team with its huge lead is playing it safe, using up the clock with runs down the middle. The name of the game as far as Nixon is concerned is defense.

"And that about summarizes the first half. The teams have now come back on the field for the second half.

"There is McGovern and Shriver screaming at Nixon to get off the bench, but Nixon is ignoring them and instructing Spiro Agnew where to kick the ball."

Joyful Airport Reunion

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Stan H. Purvis family and a lanky collie dog had a joyful reunion at Municipal Airport Friday.

Each time 5-year-old Kristin Purvis and Vance Purvis, 3, stopped hugging her, Autumn's Windy Lady extended a matted paw and begged for more.

"It was exactly three months ago today that we lost her," Mrs. Purvis said.

The family had an accident on Interstate 90 near Rapid City, S.D., while on the way home from Seattle, where Purvis had taught music for three years.

"When the excitement died down, we realized Windy was gone," Purvis said. "We spent the next five days looking for her. But we had no luck, even though we had a great deal of help from the highway patrol."

Purvis visited every farmhouse within five miles of the accident scene, and Windy's description was broadcast on radio. A reward was offered and the family returned to the home at Pleasant Hill, Mo.

Last week Mrs. Donald Madsen of rural New Underwood, S.D., spotted Windy and finally captured her with the help of patrolmen, 1½ miles from the accident scene.

Windy was shipped to Kansas City by air.

Open Once Again

Furnell Lumber Co., 2200 West Main, reopened for business this week after moving their offices and remodeling the former Better Made Dog Food Building. The lumber firm was destroyed by fire Aug. 29, with a loss estimated at $100,000. Furnell, Route 2, is shown waiting on a customer, William H. Thomas, Route 2. Furnell said the official grand opening would be held in about a month after the firm can build its inventory back up to its old level.

Eric Jannersten points out that due to the bad diamond break and the unfavorable location of the king of spades, South will need card-reading plus some mild help from the defense.

The mild help is for West to start by cashing his three high hearts. East will play the four on the first lead and the seven the second time. South should drop his five at trick one and his deuce at trick two to give West the best incentive to play the three high hearts.

West shifts to the jack of spades at trick four and South should let this hold the trick. West has dealt, passed and shown up with 10 high card points. He just can't also hold the spade king.

West leads a second spade and this time the ace is played from dummy.

South cashes dummy's queen of diamonds and leads a diamond to his ace. West shows out and now we see why it was so important that South just concede that first spade trick. East is going to be caught in a squeeze.

Like most squeezes, it is a cinch when it has been built up. South cashes his last heart and discards a diamond from dummy. East had discarded a spade on the third heart; this time he lets a club go.

Now South plays ace-king and jack of clubs to dummy's queen and East has to throw either the king of spades or one of his two diamonds. Either way, South makes the rest of the tricks.

Dynamics Contracts Are Signed

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Contracts representing $270 million for building three liquefied natural gas tankers at its Quincy, Mass., shipyard were signed Friday, General Dynamics Corp. announced.

The three 125 cubic meter tankers will be used to transport liquefied natural gas from Algeria to the east coast of the United States. The ships will be purchased by Cyrogenics Energy Transports, Inc., LNG Transport Inc., and Liquigas Transport, Inc.

General Dynamics said the tankers are the first of their kind to be built in any American shipyard. They are scheduled for delivery in 1975.

The contract signing represented a plus for General Dynamics' Quincy yard, which the firm had been considering closing. Antiquated equipment and low labor productivity have cost the firm at Quincy $280 million in nine years.

Last July, however, company chairman David S. Lewis said the yards are "potentially the biggest profit maker in the company."

Supervisor Honored

Edwind Walters Jr., 1800 East Sixth, assistant manager of the Central Missouri Electric Co-op, was presented a tropy by Ron Jones, president of the Manufacturers Association of Pettis County, as outstanding supervisor of the month Thursday night at the association's meeting.

Few Indictments Made Under Land Sales Act

By WILLIAM L. CHAZE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Congress, reacting to widespread complaints of sales fraud among land developers, passed the Interstate Land Sales Act in 1968 to police the industry. Only four indictments have been obtained.

George Bernstein, appointed last March to administer the act for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, admits that enforcement has been nearly nonexistent. He says it will improve.

Toward that end, he says, the Office of Interstate Land Sales is holding public hearings in 17 cities across the nation. Atlanta, where hearings were held two days this week, was the sixth and most recent city to be visited.

One purpose of the hearings is to obtain leads for investigators sniffing out sales fraud in recreational land development. At least six indictments are in the works and they are based partly on information obtained at the hearings, Bernstein said in an interview.

The sessions thus far have spotlighted developments catering to buyers looking for a place to build a retirement home or a second home for recreation. Most developments mentioned have been in the Northeast, Southwest and South.

Scores of complaints have been filed by witnesses. The Atlanta testimony was typical of that heard in New York, Boston, Denver, Kansas City and Washington since the hearings began last May.

Witnesses complained that property had been misrepresented, that the initial cost did not cover hidden items for which they were later charged, that salesmen applied high-pressure tactics, that "vacation trips" to visit developments failed to pan out, or that developers sold land for which they held only an option to buy.

The single thread running through all the tetimony has been that the buyers don't know their rights under the law.

A common complaint was that the buyer didn't know what he was getting until after a down payment was made and the sales contract signed.

Discover Body Of Missing Man

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The body of Homer Leon Austin, 27, of Peculiar, Mo., who was missing nine days, was found Friday under his wrecked car near the north end of the Chouteau Bridge.

Police said Austin's wife reported him missing two days after he disappeared Sept. 20.

His car ran off the end of an unfinished section of Missouri 210, sailed 185 feet through the air into a drainage ditch where it was concealed by brush.

People In The News

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Cellist Pablo Casals has been offered a home in Mexico by a Guadalajara couple who had it built especially for the 95-year-old musician.

Casals, however, has decided the building should be used as a cultural center, his wife, Marta, says.

Mrs. Casals said on Friday her husband would travel to Mexico in the next month to attend the dedication. "We cannot accept such a gift," she said of the offer to use the building as a home.

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Nobel Prize-winning author Pearl Buck, 80, is reported in satisfactory condition and resting comfortably following surgery here.

The author had her gall bladder removed Friday. She had been hospitalized Sunday with abdominal pains.

SANTA MONICA, Calif (AP) — A superior court judge here has denied actor Mickey Rooney the sole custody of his four children by his fifth marriage, saying Rooney "has had a poor record to date as a father."

Judge Mario Clinco said Rooney will remain a coguardian, but the children will continue to live with their maternal grandmother, Helen Thomason, of Rolling Hills.

"Mr. Rooney, on his seventh marriage, has had a poor record to date as a father," the judge said. "The entire record is devoid of any evidence that Mr. Rooney gave or attempted to give his children paternal guidance during the past six years and particularly during the past three years."

NEW YORK (AP) — What was once called a Cinderella story, in reverse, has ended here with the separation of the granddaughter of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the son of an Italian barber.

Attorney Vincent Malone filed notice Friday of a separation in Manhattan Supreme Court. He said the former Sara Delano Roosevelt and her husband, Anthony Di Bonaventura, would be divorced soon, but he did not say why.

The Di Bonaventuras were married 19 years ago and have five children. Mrs. Di Bonaventura was heiress to the $50 million fortune of her stepfather, John Hay Whitney.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR GEORGE MEANY of the AFL-CIO*

How come you and the AFL-CIO Executive Council decided not to support any Presidential candidate this year? Aren't you deserting the Democratic party?—C. V., Kenosha, Wis.

● To put our political philosophy quite simply, the American labor movement is not tied to any political party. We're not the property of any political party, nor do we claim to own, in whole or in part, any political party. In the past, when the AFL-CIO endorsed a Presidential candidate, that endorsement reflected a strong consensus within the labor movement. But it's quite obvious that there is no consensus this year. What we get from individual members throughout the country is a negative response. A certain portion of our members are against one candidate or another. They don't come up in favor, but they are against.

FOR LOUIS PATRICK GRAY III, Acting Director, FBI*

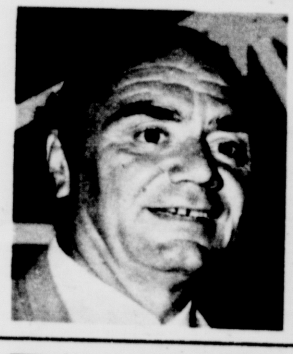
Now that the Bureau has relaxed its rule on female FBI agents, are you actively recruiting women as Special Agents?—Carol Brown, Logan, Utah

● Yes, and we have received approximately 30 applications. Of those, 11 have passed our initial processing. At present, two women have passed our entrance requirement and are Special Agents, receiving their training at the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

Now that Lucie is married, and Desi, Jr., moved out of the house, don't you ever get lonely for them?—R. F., Van Nuys, Calif.

● I see more of them now than before. In fact, Desi, Jr., moved back into the house just before he went to Japan to make a film.



FOR ERNEST BORGNINE

What is the biggest professional mistake you've ever made in your life?—B. Adams, Winona, Minn.

● I was offered either a straight salary or a percentage of the profits for "Willard." I exercised my usual fine business judgment and took the salary! I thought, "Whoever would want to see a cast of rats?" Well, the picture grossed so much that if I had taken a percentage, my cut would have been well over a million dollars!

FOR NEILE ADAMS (MRS. STEVE McQUEEN)

I read that you are going back to work as an actress. Is this because you are divorced from Steve McQueen?—R. F., Alhambra, Calif.

● We are not divorced—we are separated. And we are still the best of friends. But it is true that I went back to work, because as long as Steve and I were together I didn't want to take the time away from him and the children. But now that we're separated, I feel I can get back—and starting by doing a film with Burt Reynolds ("Fuzz") wasn't a bad way to do it.

FOR SEN. MARGARET CHASE SMITH of Maine*

What do you think of having a mandatory retirement age for members of Congress?—Mrs. Dale Snyder, Bethany, Ill.

● I am opposed to mandatory retirement age for members of Congress. Let the people themselves vote when to retire a specific member—for age or any other reason.

FOR PERRY COMO

I read in FAMILY WEEKLY that you didn't know if you would ever perform again. Can you?—P. G. D., Logansport, Ind.

● I went to the Hilton Hotel in Las Vegas last summer, and to Harrah's Club in Reno. It was painful at first, and I took about 40 pills a day to keep going. I tied this in to my speech to the audience. I told them I took so many pills I'd never get pregnant. I had to wear a support on my leg when I was onstage, but I even managed a couple of dance steps.

FOR GARY PLAYER, professional golfer*

I noted that the week after you won the 1972 PGA, you didn't do well in a lesser tournament. Why?—I. R. Rogers, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● Winning a big one takes as much out of me as playing in 12 regular tournaments. I was so tired after the PGA tournament I stayed in bed most of the following Monday. Indeed, if I lived in the United States all year round, and didn't have such a tight schedule, I would have taken that next week off.

FOR CARROLL O'CONNOR of TV's "All in the Family"*

Because of Archie's bigoted remarks, do you ever have any fear of being attacked by someone in the studio audience? —Richard J. Bard, New York, N.Y.

● Not at all. As a matter of fact, people everywhere are extremely courteous. They realize I am only playing a character.

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL, author*

I've heard that you've written a book on ESP. True? —R. L. Nason, Austin, Texas

● The book is by Jess Stearn. He suggested that I be hypnotized by a psychiatrist-hypnotist, Frank Revessey, and be "regressed" to past lives. Jess would take tapes and write up the book. I scoffed at the idea but was curious. I didn't hear the tapes, but when I read the manuscript, I was astounded. It seems I was speaking in ancient languages that had to be interpreted by a scholar. But I'm still a skeptic, and I said so in Jess's book.

The 5 Basics I Knew Our Children Had to Learn

By Billy Graham, Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Russ Busby

As a parent of five children (three grown and married), I have tried to teach our children (along with my wife Ruth, who is a better teacher than I) the rudiments of living. If I were to list those things we have tried to teach them I would put the following five at the top of the list.

Learn the Difference Between Right and Wrong

I was interested to hear one of our leading writers say on television that for years she thought human nature was basically good and only its environment was bad. But she stated she has finally concluded that human nature is evil.

The Bible teaches that there are evil tendencies inherent in each of us, and that life is a struggle against these forces. That is why my children had to be taught to do right. They did wrong instinctively. None of my children had to learn how to get angry, to be self-centered, or even to tell a falsehood. All children do these things naturally, without training.

In Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," we find Huck saying: "Well then, what's the use of learning to do right when it's troublesome to do right, and it ain't no trouble at all to do wrong."

Some of our modern children insist on "doing their own thing," but that's what got Adam in trouble back in the Garden of Eden—"doing his own thing"! Children have to learn that they are not the center of the universe—that there are rules for living, just as there are rules for Ping-Pong or bowling—and that the game of life, like other games, is no game at all without rules.

Learn That Honesty Is Rewarding

The old saying goes, "Honesty is the best policy." But it is more than a policy that may be just an expediency. Honesty is a rewarding practice in peace of mind and heart, and it is often more difficult to be honest than to be dishonest.

A child, like an adult, is inclined to follow the line of least resistance. Lying, theft and cheating are attempts to find the easiest way out of a situation. Teach your children that life isn't easy—that it is a struggle, a conflict, and that it takes more strength of character to do right than wrong.

Teach your children that honesty is akin to happiness and that a good conscience is a valuable possession. Don't overload your teaching with "Don't do this," and "Don't do that," but make it positive, like the Bible, which says: "This do and thou shalt live."

Learn That Suffering Is a Part of Life

It is natural for immature people, both children and adults, to run from suffering, work and responsibility. How many children mow the lawn, wash the dishes or tidy up their rooms—without being told?

> "I have a sneaking suspicion that the free-living, unbathed, undisciplined hordes of young people who wander aimlessly across the land have missed the blessing of loving, concerned discipline in their early years."

Teach your child that life is not a mere parade of pleasure, good times and having fun—but that suffering, inconvenience and hardship are part and parcel of a normal life. Then he will not be bewildered when he stubs his toe, breaks his arm or even suffers from a serious disease. It is right to protect our children from harm and injury, but they should know that life on this planet is hazardous and that difficulties are made to be used, surmounted and triumphed over.

Learn That Self-discipline Is a Good Thing

Until children are able to discipline themselves, they will need some outside discipline. A criminal, basically, is a person who never matures, and that is why he must be disciplined by judges, juries, the courts, and even imprisonment. This is also one of the reasons I believe in Biblical judgment, for there are some people who never mature, never repent, and never desire change and improvement in their natures. If we don't discipline ourselves, someone else must discipline us.

In a child's growing years parents must take the responsibility of discipline. It is said that Diogenes struck the father when the son swore. And in early American days parents were sometimes flogged when their children became a nuisance in the neighborhood.

The Bible says, "He that spareth the rod hateth his son" (Proverbs 13:24). I have a sneaking suspicion that the free-living, unbathed, undisciplined hordes of young people who wander aimlessly across the land have missed the blessing of loving, concerned discipline in their early years.

Learn That There Is a God in Heaven

This is not difficult to do because children instinctively are believers.

I heard about a school that had a notice on its bulletin board that read: "In case of an atomic attack the Supreme Court ruling on prayer will be temporarily discontinued." But such a notice is really unnecessary because it is natural for children to pray and to believe in God. No court ruling can change this.

By "teaching" your children to believe in God, parents must give evidence that they themselves believe in Him too. I was reading the Scripture and doing a little commentary when my five-year-old son interrupted with, "Daddy, you said we were going to have prayers. When are you going to stop talking and start praying?" Many parents talk too much about God, but talk to Him too little.

Taking your children to church is futile unless you go with them. Reading the Bible is useless unless you as parents practice the precepts therein before your children. The best way to teach is by example, and children see what you believe better than they hear what you say.

Roller Derby Queen Joan Weston:

"What's a Nice Girl

Away from the wheeling warfare of Roller Derby, Joan Weston hardly seems capable of decimating an opposing team of woman skaters with brutal hip, leg and shoulder blocks. As she sits quietly in her dressing room in New York's Madison Square Garden, she is dressed in a navy blazer that she wears over a white pleated mini-skirt. Her hair, still wet from a post-game shower, is tied back with a pink ribbon into a pony-tail, and she looks like an athletic, slightly older Candice Bergen. But her laugh is more like Phyllis Diller's as she ribs her teammates and they rib her back.

In startling contrast to her girlish appearance, she is tending a purplish wound on her forearm, the souvenir of a block that sent her into and over a rail, off the banked track and onto the Garden's concrete eight feet below. There she is—Joan Weston, the female superstar of Roller Derby, 37 years old, five-feet-ten-inches tall, an 18-year veteran of the roller-skating wars. Rough and tough on the track, she also quotes Sigmund Freud, reads Boswell and is president of the Democratic Club of San Leandro, Calif.

Born in Huntington Park, Calif., Joan Weston was raised by her grandparents, E. J. and Olive Edwards, after her parents, Evelyn and Gard Weston, were divorced during her infancy. She recalls that her father was "a beautiful man. He resembled Clark Gable. I adored him. I guess I'll never forget the one summer I spent with him before he was killed in a car crash. I resented my mother. I thought she was responsible for their troubles. Actually, I never knew my mother when I was a child. I never wanted to. She lived one place and I lived another. My grandparents were of pioneer stock. They owned a gas station and restaurant and worked at both six days a week. My grandfather was the town's soft touch. Always good for a couple of bucks. Grandmother pretended to be the stern one. She was just under five feet tall, but when she talked you listened.

"I never had a chance to run wild. It was Grandfather's wish that I be a St. Mary's girl and so I was. I loved it, and if I hadn't been more anxious to be on the varsity, I might have been an excellent student. But my head was always in a cloud—either a cloud of dust at home plate or at the scrimmage line. I thought seriously then of being a trick horseback rider, a carry-over from my days of envying Dale Evans and her hold on Trigger and Roy Rogers. That made Grandma itchy. When I decided later that I wanted to be a nun, she nearly had kittens. She threatened to take me out of school. We were not Catholics, you see. Next I decided I would be a great slugging first baseman with a girls' softball team. That seemed almost normal to Gran, so she let me play in

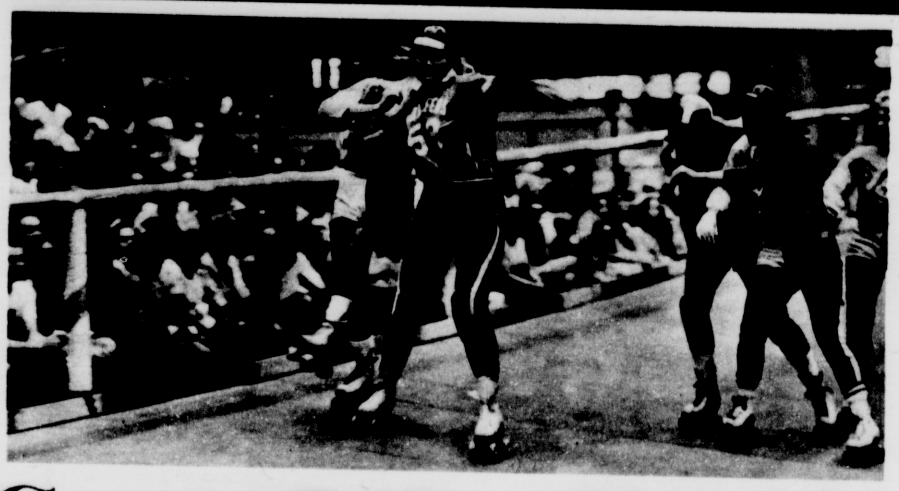
Raquel Welch, the "Kansas City Bomber": "Skaters Are Tough, But All Women Are Tough"

What does Raquel Welch, star of the Roller Derby film "Kansas City Bomber," think of women skaters? "The Roller Games are a microcosm of this country, the kind of thing we create. I took all my own falls. I broke my right wrist. . . . I had a spasm in my shoulder muscle. I had my lip split open.

"The motivation of the skater I play is to make a buck. . . . There's a futility in what she does. The shape of the track is her life, round and round, going nowhere. Most of the skaters suffer from the same image I do. They're on skates, they're on a raised track. Most people tend to think of them as Amazons. . . .

"The game is almost show business, it's a carnival atmosphere, but I can understand its popularity. The skaters are tough, but I think all women are tough. Skating is a batchy, sweaty, funky life. But I enjoyed it."

By Alan Ebert



"Money isn't where it's really at; money isn't why you work for stardom continuously, even when you already have it. Do you know what it's like to be able to bring 20,000 people to their feet—to make them hate or love you? That's where it's at. Power!"

Like You Doing in a Sport Like This?"

the San Gabriel Valley Girls' Softball League. Two years later, when I was 16, I was offered a contract to turn pro. But I had just seen my first Roller Derby and I was already hooked."

But Joan found she herself wasn't quite prepared for Roller Derby. "The language terrified me and when I learned what the words meant and that many of the skaters believed actions spoke louder than words, I nearly quit. It was a far cry from St. Mary's. In retrospect, it seems funny, but it wasn't when it was happening. I wanted to skate—wanted to compete, but I was afraid of what looked to me like Peyton Place on roller skates. I had been so sheltered. I finally decided to call my mother. She had worked as a waitress all her life at truck stops and she knew all the words. She had heard all the stories. She didn't laugh at her dummy daughter. She just said, 'Joanie, Derby people aren't any different from any other people in this world. People and sex are like franks and beans. They go together.'

"My mother has never liked the idea of my being in Roller Derby, but only because of its roughness. She has never seen me skate and won't. It terrifies her. My grandmother came only once. Needless to say she didn't rush off to start a fan club for her granddaughter.

"But I guess I really loved it from the start—even after my 'auspicious' debut. I stumbled and fell in front of nine skaters—and every one of them fell over me. Was I clumsy! But the speed . . . the sense of freedom when you're skating at 30 miles an hour . . . the game itself—all had me hooked. The violence never attracted me. I always hoped my skating rather than my fists would do the talking. It hasn't always worked out that way and that embarrasses me. I've had my share of fights—even won most of them. But in the winning I've always felt like a loser. Unless I'm kidding myself, I don't think hostility is my bag. With some of the newer kids it is. They fight skaters, management, fans, everything. They're angry. I think they reflect the mood of the times. Yet, when it comes to fighting for a cause—like equal pay for female skaters—they chicken out. I earn about $30,000 a year now. If I were a man, I'd be earning close to $50,000. It isn't fair."

Joan Weston is single and doesn't seem unhappy about it.

"I was engaged when I was 20 . . . to a teammate. He was tall, dark and absolutely gorgeous. The publicity department had a field day. 'Made for each other,' they said. It took us 18 months to find that we weren't. Since then, there have been two disastrous engagements. One man even demanded that I stop skating, which I refused to do. I don't think I'll ever marry.

"Do I have regrets? Yes. But, and this is a big 'but' in my life, I do have stardom and that can't be minimized. Anyone who tries to minimize it doesn't have it. Money is one of its joys. But money isn't where it's really at; money isn't why you work for stardom continuously, even when you already have it. Stardom is recognition, approval, power. Do you know what it's like to be able to bring 20,000 people to their feet—to make them hate or love you? That's where it's at. Power!

"I'm nearly 40 and I'm in great shape and can still outskate most kids half my age. But I bruise a little easier each year and take a little longer to heal. I don't plan to retire, even though within four years, thanks to sound investments, I'll never have to work again. But what would I do? I could finish college and get my teaching license, but the truth is I want to stay with Derby. I would miss the crazy life. I belong here. I'm part of growing heritage—part of a family, 150 maniacs all.

"I'd like to train skaters and work with the new kids. But I wouldn't coach. That's a man's job. I can hear the screams from Gloria Steinem and company now. Sorry about that, but I still believe certain roles should be played by men, others by women. I'm willing to let a man be my coach. And if he wants to view me as a sex object, I won't complain. I mean—if a man wants to think I'm Raquel Welch, that's not going to upset me. I may have taken a lot of spills in my career, but punchy I'm not."

Far from being a feminist, Joan believes that men and women have different roles. Only a man should be a coach, she believes. In top photo, her big frame wreaking havoc, she powers her way around a Chicago track.

The Diet Watch

One (Fat) Man's Meat Is Another Man's Chicken

If you're eating like an average American, about 40 percent of your calories come from fats. Dr. Jeremiah Stamler, executive director of the Chicago Health Research Foundation, believes that "It's no hardship to reduce this to 30 percent or even 25 percent. I know because I've done it." Some particularly good ways to help slim down: Eat more of the low-fat meats like broiled chicken, which has only three grams of fat for three ounces (without the skin). Three ounces of regular hamburger have 17 grams of fat; lean hamburger has ten. Choose meats that aren't so marbled with fat that it's difficult (or impossible) to separate the lean from the fat. For instance, three ounces of lean sirloin have only six grams of fat, but lean-and-fat sirloin has 27—or four and a half times as much fat! . . . Eat fish because fish is mostly low in fat. And of course, since the way food is prepared can raise the fat content, eat meat and fish and vegetables that are unfried, uncreamed, unsauced. Most vegetables taste delicious if you halve the amount of butter you normally use, and sprinkle on a few drops of lemon instead. As for gravy, the ideal unfat kind for a dieter is the meat's natural juices.

People Quiz

Why Do People Have Such Different Attitudes?

True or False: A person's appearance reveals his social attitude. (See number 3.)

By John E. Gibson

Pictorial Parade

A man's attitude reflects the sum total of what he is and how he reacts to the world around him. It follows that how we feel about someone is likely to depend more on his attitude than anything else. In this quiz we take a look at some interesting findings on the subject.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people's attitude toward strangers is: "Don't get too close to me—I prefer to keep you at arm's length."

2. The fellow with the practical, hardheaded, what's-in-it-for-me attitude has the best-adjusted personality.

3. A person's appearance reveals his social attitude.

4. Left-handed people have a different attitude toward life than right-handed people.

5. If you hold firm and unswerving opinions about most things, it indicates you're self-reliant.

6. Men and women differ markedly in their general outlook and attitude toward life.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies indicate that most people are markedly unenthusiastic about cultivating the acquaintance of a stranger. This is evidenced by an experiment recently conducted at a leading university. In a waiting room, psychologists arranged a group of six chairs equidistant from each other. Under various pretexts, each of 66 men and women subjects was taken one at a time to the experimental room and asked to take a seat. Note was taken that two of the chairs were by far the most popular—possibly because of being the most comfortable and affording the most interesting view. The experiment was then repeated—with only one difference. This time when each person entered, he found that someone else was occupying the chair next to the two favorite seats. Results: Not one of the 66 subjects would sit adjacent to the other person, even though it meant sitting in a less-comfortable place.

2. False. In studies at the University of Arizona, over 100 men and women were given personality tests designed to show whether they were basically "givers" or "takers" in their relationships with others. It was found that the giving-oriented individuals differed significantly from the others in that they had "a high acceptance of self, a healthy emotional adjustment, and were adaptable, outgoing, trustful, open, understanding, and cheerful." Not so with the "takers," or what's-in-it-for-me type, who scored low-man-on-the-totem-pole in these characteristics.

3. True. According to the findings of studies conducted at Boston University. The investigators defined and analyzed personal appearance on a seven-point scale, ranging from extreme "hip" (bell-bottom pants, beads, etc.) to extreme "straight" appearance (short hair, button-down shirts, dress or skirt slightly above knee-length). Personality attitude tests showed that a person's appearance is an indication of whether he is a liberal or a conservative. Right-wing people dressed straighter than the moderates; moderates' attire was straighter than left-wingers. Another finding: Females were judged straighter in appearance than males. The investigators believe this "may be related to the importance of neatness attached to the female role."

4. True. Psychological studies of left- and right-handed people show that a "lefty" tends to be much more individualistic, free-thinking and self-directed. He's touchy about being pushed around, isn't easily influenced by others, prefers to figure things out for himself. Psychologists point out that it's not surprising that a left-hander growing up in a right-handed world tends to share some of the defensiveness of other "minority" groups, even to the extent of sometimes acquiring a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude.

5. False. In psychological studies conducted at the United States International University, subjects were given tests to determine the personality characteristics of open- or close-mindedness. The findings: "Open-minded persons were found to be significantly more self-reliant; they had a greater sense of personal freedom; they were less inclined to withdraw from situations, and less likely to manifest antisocial tendencies." Another university study has shown that a person with a narrow, dogmatic attitude is afraid that opening his mind to new ideas and concepts will throw him off-balance.

6. True. Consensus of psychological studies shows that women's attitude toward others is friendlier, more helpful, more sympathetic and more forgiving than men's. Men, on the other hand, have been found to be more aggressive, more argumentative, more stubborn, more goal-oriented, more leadership-minded and more persevering.

Introducing five great Southern dishes. Four of them from Swanson.

Swanson Beef Stew, Chicken Stew, Chicken & Dumplings, Chili Con Carne, and Susan Eberle, 1956 University of Arkansas Homecoming Queen.

Living on a farm in Magnolia, Arkansas, she's now Mrs. Susan Thomason, mother of two. She's tried all four of our Swanson dishes and here's what she thinks. "After one taste, all of these products speak for themselves. I serve Beef Stew over noodles with a salad, milk and rolls. It's a good hot dish for the whole family. I also use the Chicken Stew as a main dish. I make little individual chicken pies by molding pastry into muffin tins and filling the tins with the Chicken Stew. Served with a green or yellow vegetable and iced tea, it's fine. As for the Chicken & Dumplings, my daughter can eat a whole can by herself. I've never been able to make a decent dumpling, and this way I can serve Chicken & Dumplings with my head up. The chili? It's not too hot for my children so I can heat it as is and they like it. Also, I've found that it's adaptable to recipes...especially my Mexican ones. All of these products are the best there are. They really don't need adjectives because they're tops."

Give our products a try and we'll give you up to $1.00.

This child has a good home, nice clothes, a loving mother— and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. Star Chat

James Franciscus: "I'd Take Redford Over Franciscus!"

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Q: You've starred in films and in acclaimed TV series like "Mr. Novak" and "Longstreet," yet you've refused to star in your own production of "The Red Pony," which you're currently making as an NBC-TV special. Why?

A: First of all, those series weren't really all that successful. I've never been in a long running series. "Novak" was on for two years; "Naked City," for one year; and "Longstreet" was only on one year. Mainly I have not hired myself because either the properties are not what I want to do, or they are not right for me to be in. I won't saddle my company with me unless I'm a real asset to the project.

Franciscus: Would it help if he were more "in" in Hollywood?

Q: Are you looking specifically for stories that are right for you?

A: Not really. When I was producing and casting "Heidi," "David Copperfield," "Jane Eyre" and "Kidnapped," I began to see with more perspective why I'm not offered some of the roles that I think I would like. Let's face it: If I, as a producer, could get a Robert Redford, I'd take him any day in preference to me. And there's a good reason for this. Having a Redford means a little more insurance—not assurance, but insurance—that you'll get your money back.

Q: Then you think the star is what makes a series or a film successful?

A: No. The script is the real star. "The Godfather" would be a hit regardless of Brando. He adds to it—make no mistake about that—but in the long run, it's the product that sells.

Q: Are you and your wife Kitty part of the Hollywood scene?

A: No, I don't think so. I'm not too sure what the Hollywood scene is. I like living out here. I like my house in the San Fernando Valley with all the green grass and fruit trees, and the great climate—that's the Hollywood I know.

Q: Then you don't miss the parties and premieres and publicity ballyhoo?

A: No. And sometimes I think it's unfortunate I don't make the effort, because I'm sure a lot of work is gotten because you are "in." I tried it for three weeks when I first came to Hollywood. I went to so many parties and functions you couldn't believe it. But I was bored to tears! Even my friends are outside show business. They're mostly writers, a doctor, a real estate developer, one or two actors—a mixed group.

Q: You and Kitty have been married for 12 years—something of a record in Hollywood. Did you two hit it off when you first met?

A: Hardly. At the age when boys are conscious of girls, I was in prep school [Fenderson School in West Newton, Mass., and Taft Prep School in Watertown, Conn.]. It was an unnatural state to be locked away with just men around you in your teens. I didn't really talk to girls until I was a sophomore at Yale because I was so uneasy around them. I didn't know how to deal with them. So when I met Kitty, I'd ask her out sort of on the spur of the moment and bore her with talk about books, theater, classical music and things like that. She kids me that I finally shook her hand after 11 dates! I think she was wrong—it was 12. And because she had never met anyone who behaved as I did, she kept quiet—and I in turn thought she was a little mouse! But we kept on seeing each other—for two years—and finally one day we blurted out we loved each other.

Q: What was the hardest part in creating the character of Longstreet?

A: Making myself not see. It was the hardest part I've done! I had to throw my eyes out of focus all day and by four in the afternoon they'd be bleeding. And on top of that, try not focusing your eyes and still play a scene at the same time. It's another added element to an already consuming job.

Q: Did you check with an eye doctor before you let yourself tackle such a risky role?

A: Oh, yes, I did! He said there was no risk, that it wouldn't do any lasting harm to my eyes. However, he agreed it would be a terrific strain!

Q: What is your idea of total success?

A: There is no total anything. I'd like to be in a position to do and be offered the kind of parts I want to do. And I would like to get better parts. For instance, if I were Steve McQueen I'd be offered more parts. But I'm satisfied with myself and my life. I am happy with who I am: provider for myself and my wife and my family.

WHY N-BF CREATED THE EXTRA CASH/PLUS POLICY

With hospital costs reaching nearly $100 a day across the country, no matter how much ordinary health insurance you have, it probably won't cover all your medical and hospital expenses today. It certainly won't cover the increasing medical costs in the months and years ahead. And it was never intended to cover the extra bills and expenses that build up at home during those difficult times when a family member is hospitalized.

It's to help meet these needs . . . to provide the cushion of extra cash, that N-BF Life Insurance Corporation created the Extra Cash/Plus Plan that pays you cash when you need it most . . . extra cash you can use any way you wish . . . tax-free cash that you don't have to account for to anyone.

Without extra cash to pay the extra bills, the extra expenses, you could leave the hospital without the money to meet your regular household expenses . . . with your savings wiped out . . . with debts you can't pay.

A STEADY FLOW OF EXTRA CASH PAID FROM 1st DAY IN HOSPITAL

But with extra cash benefits day after day, week after week, month after month paid by your Extra Cash/Plus Plan, you can have a steady flow of extra cash to help meet your extra needs.

Your extra cash benefits begin the very first day—there's no waiting period — and benefits are paid for as long as hospitalization continues, even up to 25 months — more than two full years — for each new benefit period. PLUS: you get extra benefits for up to 30 days when you or a covered family member must be confined to the intensive care unit for more than 24 hours. And you're paid for the first 30 days of convalescent facility or nursing home confinement that begins within 7 days of a covered hospital stay of at least 3 days for the same condition. All at the same low premium!

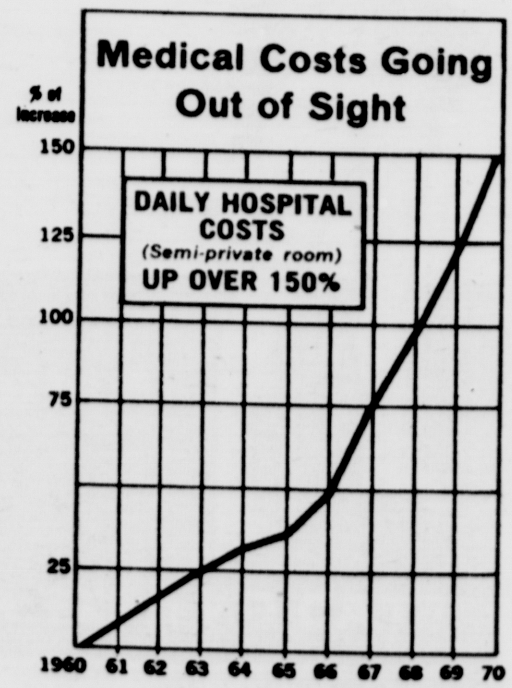
Your Extra Cash/Plus Plan pays you directly in addition to everything you receive from any other insurance company, even Medicare. You're paid your full extra cash benefits even if other insurance pays all your medical expenses.

You get all these benefits now plus a 5% increase in your own cash benefits each year for five years—a total increase of 25%—to keep up with the rising costs of everything you have to buy.

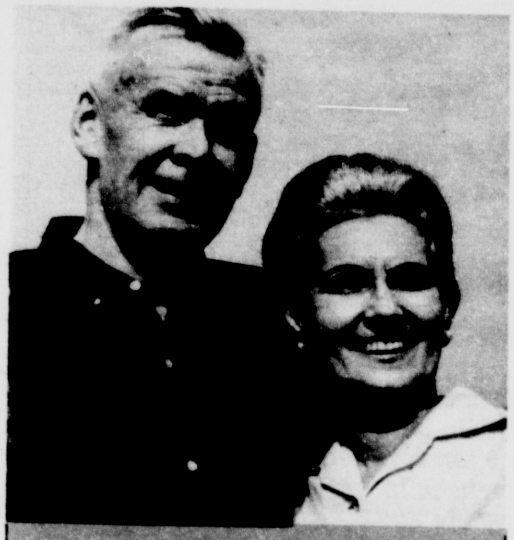
All of your unmarried dependent children residing in your home may be included under this plan between the ages of 1 month and 19 years. Both you and your wife—if neither has been hospitalized for sickness for more than a total of seven days in the past two years—are eligible for coverage. There are no other qualifications!

GENEROUS BENEFITS AT AGE 65 AND OVER PAID IN ADDITION TO MEDICARE

If you're over 65, or when you become 65, because Medicare will pay many of your medical and hospital expenses, your Extra Cash/Plus Plan will pay you 300 a month ($10 a day) for the first two months of a covered hospital confinement



$20-A-Day to you–not the doctor–than most plans, up to 25 months and pays coverage you have...even Medicare!



Generous Benefits if You Are 65 or Over...Pays in Addition to Medicare!

Medicare payments are great and will pay many of your medical and hospital expenses but can fall far short of your money needs when a prolonged hospitalization hits you.

during a benefit period and then $600 a month ($20 a day) for the next 23 months. And you get up to $300 ($10 a day) extra benefits for up to 30 days when confined in an Intensive Care Unit for more than 24 hours. In addition, you get up to $300 ($10 a day) extra benefits for up to 30 days of convalescent facility or nursing home confinement that begins within 7 days of a covered hospital confinement of 3 days or more for the same condition.

IT'S EASY TO ENROLL!

Your policy will be issued to you on your application without the usual fuss or bother of investigations and other red tape.

THESE FEW CUSTOMARY EXCLUSIONS HELP KEEP YOUR PREMIUMS LOW

Conditions resulting from declared or undeclared war or act of war; mental illness or disorder or functional nervous disorder; confinement in a federal hospital or federal convalescent facility.† A benefit cannot be paid when the institution does not make a room and board charge. Even wife's maternity is covered when both husband and wife are insured when pregnancy begins. Pre-existing conditions are not covered unless hospitalization begins two years* or more after protection starts.

*Washington and Montana residents—1 year.
†Except under Missouri policies.

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares two complete meals in a pressure cooker because: "I had given up the pressure cooker for frozen foods. But I've come back. You just can't beat a pressure cooker for speed, flavor and the retention of vitamins. And the way it saves electricity and tenderizes even the cheapest meat, it's so economical!"

Pressure Cooking Makes a Comeback

Meal-in-a-Dish Borscht, derived from a hearty peasant soup of Russian origin, contains beets, beef and cabbage.

BRAISED PORK WITH KIDNEY BEANS

(Cooks in 25 minutes instead of 2 hours)

1 lb. dried kidney beans
¼ cup vegetable oil
Salt
Water
2 lbs. boned pork-shoulder roast
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
3 cups vegetable-juice cocktail

1. Wash dried beans and soak in oil, 1 tablespoon salt and 1 quart water. Cover, refrigerate overnight.

2. Sprinkle pork roast with 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Heat pressure cooker. Add oil and brown pork-shoulder roast on all sides over medium-high heat.

3. Drain beans, discard liquid. Add beans to cooker, along with onion, green pepper, brown sugar, dry mustard and vegetable juice.

4. Close cover securely and place pressure regulator on vent pipe. Heat pressure cooker. When pressure regulator begins to rock gently and plunger in automatic air vent is up, pressure is correct. Start timing at this point. Cook for 25 minutes. Reduce heat to maintain slow, steady motion of pressure regulator.

5. When time is up, remove from heat and let the pressure drop of its own accord.

6. Remove meat and slice. Spoon beans and meat onto plates. Serve with hot corn bread and pickles.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO TRY THIS NEW PIPE!

So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT
patent number 3267941

This top grade London made briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. When you switch to a Carey Pipe, you get cleaner, cooler, sweeter, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking. The coupon below will bring you my FREE TRIAL OFFER which gives you a CAREY PIPE to smoke on a test basis for a whole month.

Please send me another Carey Pipe for my brother. I have about every kind of pipe you can think of. When in the Service, I purchased pipes in France, Germany and Switzerland, but this is the best pipe I have today. There just couldn't be a better tasting, sweeter smoke than you get from the Carey Pipe.
L. S., Edwardsville, Illinois

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

Not too long ago the Surgeon General shocked the nation with his nerve shattering report on smoking and health. A federal law was passed requiring every package of cigarettes sold in the United States to bear this message, "Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health."

AS A RESULT, Americans by the thousands switched to pipe smoking. Most of them were utterly disappointed because they just couldn't tolerate the tongue bite, the bitterness, the sludge, the slugs of foul tasting goo, and the stale after-taste that results from smoking an ORDINARY pipe.

Over 30 Years Ago

I suffered the same disappointments. I bought one pipe after another, always looking for the ideal pipe. I bought the best pipes money could buy, and I bought all the disappointing, so called improved pipes with fancy gadgets and gimmicks, but never found a single solitary pipe that would smoke hour after hour, day after day, without bitterness, bite or sludge.

It was then, with considerable doubt, I decided to work out something for myself. After months of experimenting and scores of disappointments, suddenly, almost by accident, I discovered how to harness four great natural laws to give me everything I wanted in a pipe. It didn't require any "breaking-in." From the first puff it smoked cool —it smoked mild. It smoked right down to the last bit of tobacco without bite. It never has to be "rested." Yet, it is utterly impossible for goo or sludge to reach your tongue, because my invention dissipates the goo as it forms.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged mediterranean briar—but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not A Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not A Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvres of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

When I first started making the Carey "Magic Inch" Pipe as a hobby and gave several of them to my pipe smoking friends, little did I know that their enthusiasm and persistant demands for more pipes for themselves and their friends would make my part-time hobby grow into the most unusual pipe business in the world.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option, an option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

ACTRESS JOAN DIENER
The perils of Dulcinea

It takes more than all that beauty and talent to take the female lead in "Man of La Mancha." If you're glamorous Joan Diener, who has been doing the part for years, it also takes courage and pluck to keep playing Dulcinea night after night after night. This year, Miss Diener, bound and gagged, was dropped from a height of about seven feet during a rehearsal of the famous rape scene in New York's Lincoln Center. She suffered a concussion, painfully bruised muscles, and in addition, almost broke her neck. "Nearly breaking one's neck is barely noteworthy," said Miss Diener, exaggerating slightly. One night in Los Angeles, she remembers, she and costar Richard Kiley were almost knocked off the stage by an earthquake tremor. They finished the scene—and the whole performance. Another night, in Paris, the theater's electricity went off as the result of a strike, and she and Jacques Brel finished a performance with the help of giant flashlights, held by stage managers sitting in the audience. And—oh, yes—the second New York opening came off on schedule in spite of that concussion.

Ever been stuck in a grinding traffic jam while the radio is reporting only "minor delays"? Maybe Michigan has the answer. There, citizen-band radio operators have decided to use their hobby to help fellow drivers by radioing traffic reports from their automobiles to an office at Detroit radio station WJR. An operator there jots down the information and slips it into a tiny closed-circuit television camera, from which it flashes on a TV screen where it can be read by the on-the-air disc jockey. The volunteer Michigan Emergency Patrol's 50 members operate even in bad weather, when traffic helicopters can't, delivering 40 to 50 "fast, accurate" messages a day during rush hours.

VIDA BLUE
"I'm a little close with a buck"

Pitching star Vida Blue talks about his money and his manager, Bob Gerst: "I liked Bob right away, and he seemed to like me. . . . He told me just what his take would be. He laid it all out for me. I liked the look of it. So I asked him to take over all of my money and business affairs. . . . I'm a little close with a buck. Maybe because I never had much money, except the bonus, and I never spent much of that. When I got hot, I found I had a lot of long-lost relatives and friends, and I didn't dig that much. I didn't even have any dough yet. With Bob I first began to make some. But I wanted to keep some too. I'm no penny pincher. Anything I have is my family's. I'll give to a charity a whole lot quicker than I'll give to a cousin I never saw before in my life. If I ever give a $50 tip I should get an Emmy award. If I win the Cy Young Award for the next 50 years, my style won't change." From "Vida, His Own Story" (Prentice-Hall, $6.95), by Vida Blue and Bill Libby.

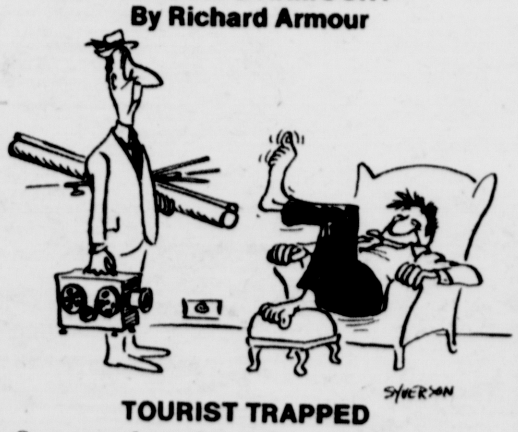
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



TOURIST TRAPPED

Some, to show they've traveled far
By plane or train or ship or car,
Bring out their film and a projector
And show their slides of every sector.

I have a simpler way to prove
I've traveled too, been on the move
And trudged, as they have, aisle and street
On aching ankles, throbbing feet.

They show their films of temples, palaces;
I take my shoes off, show my callouses.

With all these fancy bottles they're putting liquor in, you have to be careful. Yesterday I poured myself an Arpege and soda. —Robert Orben

To Sen. Jacob Javits of New York

Dear Senator Javits:

With only slight changes in design our present ICBM missiles can be converted and used to put earth's future trash into our outer space, the one place left where there's enough dumping room. In time, earth will take an appearance of Saturn, with a gigantic ring around it. However speed in adopting the plan is most essential. Experts report that, within ten years, the world's garbage dumps will completely overrun areas now being used as missile-launching sites. Please reply on your opinion of this idea.

DEAR POLLY—I bought several trays like those used in school cafeterias and short-order restaurants. I keep several in the utility room. When the clean clothes are sorted I put them on these trays and each family member picks up his own tray and puts clothes away. They are used for clearing the table and carrying my many knickknacks out to be washed or cleaned. Often such trays can be found at garage or rummage sales and are well worth their price.—MRS. M. J. "WHY DOES A BALL BOUNCE?"

A BALL BOUNCES BECAUSE IT IS ELASTIC — IT QUICKLY BECOMES ROUND AGAIN WHEN FLATTENED. WHEN A BALL HITS THE FLOOR, IT BECOMES FLATTENED A LITTLE. AS THE BALL SNAPS BACK TO ITS ROUND SHAPE, THE FLATTENED SIDE PUSHES AGAINST THE FLOOR. AND THE BALL SPRINGS QUICKLY AWAY.
